Death Stills Groucho Marx

By ROGER GILLOTT
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Groucho Marx, whose patented duck walk and flick of a cigar combined with an irreverent wit to make him the most famous of America's zaniest team of comedians, is dead of pneumonia at age 88.

The bushy-eyebrowed, mustachioed Groucho, who recently was the center of a bitter court battle over who should be his guardian, died at 7:25 p.m. PDT Friday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. First word of the death was withheld for 50 minutes, giving the family time to quietly slip out of the hospital and into seclusion. "I guess you could call this an end of an era. But I don't believe Groucho will ever leave us. He's too impudent," said Erin Fleming, longtime companion to Groucho, who practiced his irreverent, chaotic brand of slapstick comedy for more than 85 years in vaudeville, films, radio and television. Miss Fleming, who said Groucho had proposed to her several times, added that he was "a very, very strong man with a great will, but the pneumonia simply overtook him because of his age. He didn't suffer, he just fell asleep." Earlier in the day, a distraught Miss Fleming had told The Associated Press by telephone: "Groucho's just having a nice little dream now ... He's just going to have a nap and rest his eyes for the next several centuries." With Groucho when he died were his son, Arthur, daughter-in-law, Lois, and grandson, Andrew. Miss Fleming left about 15 minutes earlier. Groucho lapsed into critical condition early Friday, slipping

In and out of consciousness, a hospital spokesman said. He had been hospitalized with pneumonia since June 22, reentering Cedars-Sinai only one day after he had been released following his recovery from hip surgery.

Officials said pneumonia is a normally mild form of pneumonia, but was fatal to Groucho because of his advanced age and weakened physical condition.

Groucho had lingered in "fair" condition for weeks, until Wednesday when his vital signs became erratic, a hospital spokesman said. The comedian's condition worsened early Friday when he began losing consciousness and had to be administered oxygen and fed intravenously.

His early comedy years were spent with the family, the five Marx brothers. With Groucho's death, only Zeppo, 74, is still alive. The least known brother, Gummo, died this year. Chico died in 1961 and Harpo in 1964.

In recent years, a new era of affection for Groucho and the Marx Brothers had emerged, spawned by television reruns of their films, the "You Bet Your Life" game show and live theater revivals.

On May 6, 1972, Groucho embarked on what was to be a series of concerts. "An Evening of Groucho" at Carnegie Hall in New York that first night was sold out the day after it was announced. More than 5,000 youths — many dressed as the various Marx Brothers — were turned away from the theater.

It was the 37-year-old Miss Fleming who brought Groucho out of retirement for the Carnegie Hall appearance, and friends credited her with keeping him alive by her stimulating influence.

Friends also said Groucho was never aware in his last few months that his name was in the headlines during the court fight over who should be named guardian of his $2.8 million estate.

The struggle was between Miss Fleming, a pretty former actress who was hired as Groucho's secretary in 1970 and had been his almost constant companion since, and Arthur Marx, 56, the comedian's only son.

At one point in the trial, his brother Zeppo testified: "Groucho is in love with her." However, Arthur Marx pictured Miss Fleming as Groucho's grim tormentor, who latched onto Groucho for his money. Other witnesses said she badgered him with insults and curses.

EAU CLAIRE — An investigation by state police was continuing today in search of burglars who broke open a safe in Harding's supermarket here and escaped with $4,000 in cash and other items. The Benton Harbor state police just said the safe was punched and pried between 8:30 p.m. Thursday, and 6:40 a.m. Friday. Besides the cash, store officials said items taken from the safe included assorted food stamps, several Times watches and several cancelled checks. It's not known how the store was entered, the post said. Trooper James Bos, one of the investigating officers, said the safe weighs between 500 and 600 pounds and is about 2½ feet tall. Bos said it stood just outside the store office near a checkout counter, but was dragged some 30 feet into an aisle before being broken. Bos said pop canisters were stacked up in front to screen the view from the street. Bos said it appeared that more than one person was involved.

Errant Fathers Get Jail Terms

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

Three fathers owing a total of nearly $14,000 in child support for six ADC children were sentenced to jail this week by Berrien Circuit judges.

Joseph Beckmann, special investigator for the Berrien friend of the court's office, reported each father was placed on two years probation after being held in contempt of court for failure to make court-ordered payments.

Judge William S. White imposed the longest jail term on Lynn Thomas, of 705 1st St. and 1st, Buchanan, for more than three-quarters of the arrearage total — $9,100 for four children. Thomas was sentenced to six months in jail for making only 13 support payments since 1971.

White, however, gave the friend of the court's office permission to modify the jail sentence. Beckmann said the sentence was changed to 30 weekends in jail because Thomas' oldest daughter lives with Thomas. But, said Beckmann, Thomas was warned that if he misses one weekend in jail, Thomas will receive an automatic six-month term.

White also sentenced Sam C. Lowe, of 680 Pipestone street, Benton Harbor, to 90 days in jail for $2,800 arrears for one child. Lowe was also ordered to pay $10 weekly support and $5 per week on the arrears. Beckmann reported Lowe has made a total of 18 payments since 1973.

John P. Connell of Lansing was sentenced to 30 days in jail by Judge Chester J. Byrnes for $1,900 arrears for one child, and was told to find work within 30 days of his release or spend another 60 days behind bars.

The judge also told Connell to pay $27 weekly support and $5 weekly on the arrears, and was warned that if any payments are missed the following weekend is to be spent in jail.

BUYER MIGHT RESUME PRODUCTION

Judge Delays V-M Liquidation

By LARRY MacINTYRE
Staff Writer

KALAMAZOO — U.S. Bankruptcy Judge David Nims yesterday ordered that liquidation proceedings be halted until Oct. 1, in the V-M Corp. bankruptcy case.

The halt in the normally swift liquidation process was called to give potential buyers interested in resuming production some time to inspect the plant which covers about two square blocks in Benton Harbor.

V-M, once a leading manufacturer of stereo equipment and record changers, closed July 16 after 33 years in business. A company official yesterday blamed foreign competition for the firm's failure.

Judge Nims halted liquidation on the motion of Atty. J.D. Hartwig of St. Joseph, who is representing V-M in the bankruptcy case. Hartwig told the court he knew of two or three parties interested in purchasing the plant and resuming operations. He did not name them.

Nims told some 30 people attending the first meeting of creditors that sale of V-M as a going concern would be far more beneficial to creditors than piecemeal liquidation on the auction block.

The meeting was held at the federal building in Kalamazoo.

Nims said a court-appointed appraiser had made a preliminary estimate that the corporation is worth $7,144,264 if sold as a going concern, but would be worth only $2,855,824 if sold on the auction block.

The appraisal was done by Vern Eicholtz of Grand Rapids. Hartwig said the potential buyers were interested in resuming operations under Chapter 11 receivership rules.

Under Chapter 11, the firm could resume operations while officers prepare a repayment schedule for all debts incurred prior to July 19, the date the firm filed its bankruptcy petition.

The repayment schedule would have to be approved by a committee of creditors.

Creditors at yesterday's meeting decided not to appoint a committee until it appears that one will be needed. The creditors elected Atty. Philip A. Brown of St. Joseph as trustee of the assets.

During the hearing, the firm's president of 25 years, Victor A. Miller, testified that the company had lost $10 million during the past five years.

Total sales during that period were about $50 million, he said. A statement of affairs filed by Miller listed total debts of $5,893,567 and book value of assets at $1,911,726. Miller said assets were calculated on book value so accountants would not have to guess at current fair market values.

He blamed the company's demise on competition with foreign products that entered the U.S. market in the early sixties after President John F. Kennedy substantially lowered tariffs.

He said the foreign competition ultimately resulted in V-M not being able to raise working

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Comptroller Has D-Plus For Good Ol' Boy Bert

Jimmy Carter is breathing easier, so is Bert Lance, his director in the Office of Budget and Management, and Mike Blumenthal, the Treasury Secretary, is disappointed.

The Comptroller of the Currency, the regulatory agency for nationally chartered banks, issued a lengthy report this week saying he finds no reason to prosecute Lance for the manner in which he operated a couple of banks in Georgia prior to joining the Carter team.

Lance has been in banking most of his adult life. Prior to going to Washington he had occupied the top jobs in the Calhoun National Bank, at Calhoun, Georgia, and then the National Bank of Georgia in Atlanta.

The Comptroller's report concentrated on three areas of Lance's stewardship at those institutions.

While at Calhoun National, he was consistently overdrawn on his checking account, at one point to the tune of over $150,000. The same pattern of overdrawing went for his wife, the officers below Lance, his directors, and some employees, plus their family members.

Although Calhoun National sustained no losses on the overdrafts, the practice amounts to people in a position of trust helping themselves to interest free loans.

After he moved into National of Georgia, Lance established interest free deposits of the bank's money in New York City and Chicago banks.

This is normal practice for a country bank to place surplus funds with a larger institution. In return for obtaining lendable funds for its operations the big city bank provides the country bank with a variety of free services which it could not supply to its local customers except at high cost to itself.

Lance shifted these correspondent accounts from one larger bank to another to obtain personal loans so he could acquire a substantial ownership in National of Georgia.

These loans at one time totalled up to $6 million.

The Comptroller did not comment on the fact that National of Georgia is skipping its dividend because Lance loaded down the bank with a sizable chunk of bad loans.

The third complaint was that Lance failed to notify Calhoun and National of Georgia about the overdrafts, the personal borrowings, and a variety of outside business interests finding an entree into those banks.

Although the failure to document these activities violates the regulations of the Comptroller and the Federal Reserve Board, the other big brother to a nationally chartered bank, they do not rank as penal conduct.

The Comptroller concludes that while Lance may be an eyebrow raiser he is not a crook.

This satisfies Jimmy who is strong on his associates being morally righteous, including unmarriages living together in sweet sin. "I'm proud of you, Bert," he exulted.

It gives Blumenthal a pain.

He's been trying, unsuccessfully to date, to displace Lance as Carter's No. 1 man on economic matters.

A truly starchy report from the Comptroller might have forced Carter to part company with his old pal from Georgia.

An effort will be made in the Senate to keep the Lance controversy alive. Its Governmental Affairs Committee, which only days ago plowed the same ground to the same conclusion as the Comptroller, is scheduled to hold further hearings three weeks from now.

The IRS has its own investigation going on the Comptroller. The Service contends the Comptroller's normal examination of all banks was particularly lax with Lance's. The hint is that Bert may have salted away some untaxed income.

Also, the Comptroller says he is not finished even though his first report is a typewritten compendium 2½ inches thick.

What those extended investigations will disclose remains problematical.

Our guess is they will merely accumulate the evidence of Lance's incontestably poor judgment and disregard of the rules of stewardship.

If Don Walter at First National of Niles, Dick Willard at F&M, Jim Murphy at ICB, or Dick Schantz at Peoples State pulled any one of the stunts that Lance did, the regulatory agencies would insist their directors change management on pain of having their charters lifted.

Lance occupies a seat of authority which for day to day consequences is second only to the Presidency.

If a country banker used poor judgment, how can he improve his track record simply by moving into a bigger job?

Some Can Survive Long Immersion

Can a person remain submerged in an icy pond for 38 minutes and be revived without apparent brain damage or other disabilities? It happened to a Jackson, Michigan student. Similarly, a Michigan doctor was revived without apparent after-effects after being submerged in a cold lake for 15 minutes.

These are but two cases of 11 "drownings" in which the victims were revived after spending considerably longer underwater than the four minutes usually considered the maximum before irreversible brain damage occurs. The cases were chronicled in an article in Scientific American by Dr. Martin J. Nemiroff, an assistant professor at the University of Michigan Medical Center.

The trick to revival in these cases, Nemiroff concluded, was the cold water temperature (under 70 degrees Fahrenheit) and the "mammalian diving reflex," an automatic reflex in mammals which slows the heartbeat and concentrates blood oxygen in the heart and brain.

As a result of his research on these and other cases, Dr. Nemiroff strongly advises that rescuers and physicians not give up too quickly on victims of cold water drownings. Coming at the height of the swimming season, that advice not only is timely but should prompt further research on a phenomenon not widely observed previously.

Reader Applauds F&M's Decision To Stay In BH

Editor

I would like to express my good feeling relative to the decision of F&M Bank to relocate their main office within the city limits of Benton Harbor. We have seen time and again, businesses that were established and grew in Benton Harbor, take flight and run to another governmental unit to relocate, for either real or imagined reasons.

I think F&M Bank has shown great confidence in Benton Harbor, and this spirit of confidence should be reciprocal from the city. The city should concentrate on the Riverview area, in beautification of the river front and proceed on the marina project with utmost haste, as this would also enhance the area.

F&M Bank's decision, and it's President, Willard's statement about Benton Harbor, should help stabilize the city, at least the Riverview business area.

The whole twin-cities area, both governmental bodies and private citizens should be concerned not only with their own growth, but the growth and advancement of the area overall. We cannot have real when they could have just as easily located elsewhere.

The city should work with the business community to find an overall view of what would be best for the city, in respect to physical features of the commercial areas. Also, city officials are doing good things in respect to residential areas, such as Mayor Patterson's residential awards. But the thing I think they should concentrate on in this area, is strict enforcement of housing codes already on the books. Where is the enforcement?

Overall, the city seems to be moving forward, and I hope this continues for the best interests of us all. From Benton Harbor and St. Joseph residents, to the county as a whole, an old phrase applies, "United we stand, divided we fall."

Again thank you to F&M Bank and its director for their foresight, and their timely decision. F&M's President Willard's statement about a "Benton Harbor bank, we shall remain," is exactly my sentiments. They put their money where their mouth is.

Americans Fail In Communication

WASHINGTON — Parlez-vous francais? Sprechen Sie Deutsch? Habla Espanol?

Probably not, considering the sorry state of foreign language studies in the United States today.

In this era of supersonic travel, multinational business dealings and growing political interdependence, fewer and fewer Americans are able to communicate with the rest of the world.

In high schools and colleges across the country, enrollments in foreign language courses have been declining steadily for more than a decade with no end in sight to the trend.

Less than one-quarter of all American high school students now receive any foreign language training. Less than one-fifth of all four-year colleges still have a language entrance requirement, and only half demand any foreign language study as a prerequisite for graduation.

The Soviet Union has more teachers of English than there are students of Russian in this country.

Even the U.S. Foreign Service has been forced to abandon its traditional requirement that job applicants speak another language, although it still runs its own intensive language training program.

So what difference does it make? Who cares, apart from a few academic types who see their bread and butter slipping away?

The answer, surprisingly enough, is that quite a few people care — including President Carter, who last month agreed to set up a special panel under the direction of the U.S. commissioner of education to analyze the trend and recommend corrective action.

Carter acted in response to a suggestion from Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., a member of the Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe which has been monitoring compliance with the 1975 Helsinki Accords.

Most Americans have assumed that only the Russians, with their repeated infringements on human rights, have been guilty of violating the Helsinki agreement.

Not so. As Saon and the monitoring commission noted in discussing the matter with Carter, the United States has failed to live up to its own Helsinki pledge "to encourage the study of foreign languages and civilizations as an important means of expanding international communications and cooperation."

There is more at stake than a relatively insignificant breach of the Helsinki agreement. Within the last decade, the percentage of our own gross national product dependent upon exports has doubled — and many of the jobs created by this surge in trade have gone to foreigners simply because not enough Americans possessed the necessary language skills.

Furthermore, some of the overseas business itself has been lost because of our linguistic isolation. "Why do our friends from Germany and Japan and Sweden sometimes sell more products in other nations than we do? The answer is frequently fairly simple: they speak the language of the buying country and we do not," says Congressman Simon.

Richard I. Brod of the Modern Language Association attributes much of the decline in foreign language study to the widespread elimination of course requirements precipitated by the student revolution of the late 1960s.

To some degree, he concedes, American educational institutions have also put too much emphasis on the literary aspects of foreign languages and not enough stress on their practical uses in the world of business and politics.

But there is an attitudinal problem as well, a retreat from all foreign entanglements — linguistic and political — in the wake of our disastrous Vietnam experience. "We can't afford this kind of withdrawal," Simon says. "We've got to be able to communicate with the rest of the world or we're inviting real problems."

In a recent column I observed that there has been a shift to the left among Catholic intellectuals, a shift to the right among their Jewish counterparts.

Two symbolic figures: the New Left Jesuit, Zany Dan Berrigan pouring blood on draft files, even as moderate Jewish academic Irving Kristol is inside the White House advising the president on domestic policy.

Here are some reflections on this shift in the two intellectual subcultures.

From the perspective of an American ethnic subculture liberalism-leftism is socially "higher" than the natural conservatism of the ethnic group. An upwardly mobile Catholic or Jew thus tends to move leftward, sometimes dramatically. This constitutes his symbolic rejection of what he comes to regard as "low" or "vulgar" in the ethnic subculture out of which he is now levitating himself with the helium of cash.

The Jewish subculture made money, "look off," at least a generation earlier than the Catholic one. Stereotypically, the journey from the Bronx or East Side to CUNY and on to Harvard Medical or Law School took almost two generations.

The liberalism, radicalism, even Marxism of the upwardly mobile Jew represented his rejection of tenement, rabbi, shut, chicken soup — the whole "echt" Jewish environment. Somewhat paradoxically, leftism was one mode of universalism. It was asserted against the "low" particularism of the old ethnic group.

The American Jewish subculture first "made it" in a big way during the New Deal years, the great arm of Jewish leftism. The Catholics "made it" — in the suburbs — during the postwar boom of the 1950s.

Symbolic moment: millions of suburban Catholics who had deserted their ancestral Democratic Party to vote for Ike returned to it in 1960 to elect a "with it" Catholic, John Kennedy.

Without a doubt, the current liberalism-leftism of the upwardly mobile Catholic intellectual reflects his social circumstance. Nothing could be further from the un-chie Fr. Coughlin or from Joe McCarthy than Che Guevara, Iey Gene McCarthy, and Francine ("Divine Disobedience") Du Plessis-Gray.

During the 1930s, when Harvard crawled with Marxists and Stalinists, places like Holy Cross, Boston, College, Fordham, and Notre Dame were pretty grimly conservative. An improbable sexual puritanism pervaded them. They also produced most of Hoover's FBI agents.

Today, however, these Catholic campuses crawl with New Leftists, swinging theologians, and half-demented nuns. These Catholic campuses are not now producing FBI agents. With any luck, rising socially, they will produce as many Communist spies as Harvard once did.

Ludicrously enough, these zonked out Catholic academics and intellectuals are now wearing, with mod stylistic alterations, the hand-me-down radical clothes discarded by the Jewish intellectuals during the 1960s.

Big Elm Is Symbol Of St. Joe Protest

Residents Fighting For Tree

BY NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

A huge American elm tree at the corner of Lake boulevard and Main street in St. Joseph is becoming a symbol of the historical importance and charm claimed for the neighborhood by members of the Lake Bluff Preservation association.

"Please Save Me," reads a sign posted on the tree Wednesday evening by Henry Leto, 1450 Lake boulevard, owner of the tree, and members of the association, according to Mrs. Peter (Karen) Johnson, association secretary. Under a city proposal to improve Lake boulevard, the old elm would be felled as the intersection of Main and Lake is widened for safety reasons, Mrs. Johnson said.

While the preservation association agrees that the intersection is now dangerous, members believe the hazard would be removed if only two lanes of traffic rather than the current three lanes were allowed to drive on the boulevard, said Mrs. Johnson.

The association was formed seven months ago after the city announced it planned to widen, resurface and put new curbs along mile-long Lake boulevard. Complaints by residents that the widening would destroy what they call "the historical integrity" of Lake boulevard led to a compromise.

Current plans call for widening the intersection of Lake and Main and widening Lake north of Park street, leaving the boulevard at its present width south of Park, where most of the residents live.

St. Joseph City Manager G.W. Heppler said even the most recent plan is not final. Because 70 per cent of the proposed project will be paid for with federal funds, more citizen participation in the detailed planning is required and, Heppler added, desired by the city.

Mrs. Johnson said that the association opposes any "improvement" other than resurfacing the street.

As of Friday, the city had not received final approval from the federal government for the estimated $281,000 project, Heppler said. If that approval is given, engineers and two preservation association members will begin the "nuts and bolts" detailed planning for the project, he said.

According to Chuck Nelson, director of the Sarett Nature center, the elm is between 50 and 100 years old. "It's surely one of the largest elm trees in St. Joseph and it would be a shame to lose it," he said.

It's rare to find such a large elm without Dutch elm disease, Nelson said. He added that he studied the tree recently at the request of members of the preservation association.

WANTS OLD ELM SAVED: "We want the people to call city hall if they want to save that tree," Karen Johnson said, explaining why the Lake Bluff Preservation association this week posted a sign on American elm tree at the corner of Lake boulevard and Main street, St. Joseph (photo at right.) Tree would be felled as part of a proposed city project to widen the intersection for safety reasons, said Mrs. Johnson, secretary of the preservation association. Close-up of sign on tree (left)

Judge Denies New Plea By Figlus

BY SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

A Berrien Circuit court judge yesterday denied a motion that would have brought back for additional consideration the imprisonment of convicted rapist-killer David Paul Figlus of St. Joseph.

Judge Chester J. Byrns said that all the issues raised by Figlus in his hand-printed motion for a writ of habeas corpus had been brought to the court's attention by the 16-year-old's attorney at a Monday hearing.

Figlus had pleaded guilty in the rape-slashing death of Dona Jean Armstrong, 20, of St. Joseph, and in March was sentenced by Byrns to life in prison.

A writ of habeas corpus brings a defendant before the court so a judge can determine whether that person is being denied his freedom lawfully.

Figlus told Byrns he had drafted the writ of habeas corpus himself with the only help coming from a law book. Byrns queried whether David Jordan Purnell, convicted of second degree murder, had helped write the motion, and Figlus responded: "No." Purnell in the past has drafted motions for other jail inmates.

But Assistant Prosecutor Chris Dunfield, representing his office at the hearing, noted later: "After comparing the application for the writ of habeas corpus with the pleadings of another prisoner who in court admitted Purnell prepared his motion, there is no doubt in my mind that the two documents were hand-printed by the same person."

"There is nothing in this application that has not already been brought before this court," Byrns ruled, and held that Figlus' confinement by the state in prison or county jail "is proper and lawful." The judge also ordered that Figlus be returned to Jonia prison.

Figlus had been lodged at the county jail for the hearings this week, and Purnell is also currently lodged there awaiting sentencing for the murder of Janet Uland.

Byrns also criticized Figlus' motion, noting the writ of habeas corpus is one of the greatest liberties in the judicial system, but it can be abused. "A prime example, I think, is this application for a writ of habeas corpus," Byrns said.

Although Figlus said he drafted the motion, Byrns expressed doubts. "This court finds it surprising that a 16-year-old dug this up. But it shows the truth of the old adage that one who is his own lawyer has a fool for a client."

Part of Figlus' application for habeas corpus claims he "is being restrained from his liberty by committing malicious 'fair on it's face' but rendered a nullity without force and effect due to erroneous factual basis which is derivative by-product of illegal search and seizure and inceptually tainted extra-judicial confession, violative of defendant's constitutional rights as juvenile offender-accused."

Another part of the motion contents Figlus made a confession about the murder because of "the stark terror and anxiety a murder charge reverberates to a child of tender years." Testimony at Monday's hearing said Figlus made the confession after consulting with an attorney and with counsel present.

Dunfield outside of court said people involved in Figlus' case understood what the motion sought even though most of the language consisted of legal terms that together into a sentence of made-up words.

Monday's hearing concerned a motion by Figlus' court-appointed attorney, Michael Murrs, who asked that Figlus' guilty plea be set aside and the case remanded to juvenile court for further proceedings.

Byrns said he expects to give his decision on that motion by the end of the month.

Students Log Motorist Foulups In SJ

By MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

A group of 100 students taking driver education courses at Lake Michigan Catholic high school this summer hope they can learn from other people's mistakes.

That was the idea of a study they recently completed in which they observed drivers along 20 of St. Joseph's busiest intersections and tallied the number and type of violations motorists made.

Students counted over 300 violations, according to William McRae, director of driver education and assistant principal at Lake Michigan Catholic.

During the two hours and 15 minutes the students observed motorists, the most commonly made mistakes the students saw were: failure to use turn signals, 107 motorists; failure to stop completely at sign, 76; failure to stop before right turn on red light, 77, and stopping on crosswalk, 35.

The study was conducted from 8 to 9:45 on three separate mornings at intersections on Main, State and Church streets. They saw no accidents during their study.

"What the students found was that a lot of drivers make minor mistakes without thinking," said McRae. "There weren't many major violations, but it's the minor mistakes that cause accidents and get you tickets."

Along with the traffic survey, the students also kept notebooks of newspaper articles on area traffic accidents and their cause. "What they found out from keeping track of accidents related directly with what they observed in the traffic survey," McRae said. "It was the minor mistakes that were the cause of most of the accidents."

Other violations the students observed in their survey included failure to yield the right of way to another vehicle, 4;

failure to yield the right of way for a pedestrian, 6; improper lane usage, 5; U-turns, 3; ignoring yellow light, 7; no brake lights, 1, and backing a car through traffic 1.

Bridge To Stay Down Tuesday

The Twin Cities Bicentennial bascule bridge over the main stream of the St. Joseph river will not rise for navigation Tuesday while electrical repairs are being made, according to Ernest Malkewitz, project engineer for the state highway department. Malkewitz said the repair work will not affect automotive traffic. Hours when the bridge will not rise for navigation are 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. Tuesday.

Malkewitz said boaters can use the Morrison channel which has about 30 feet clearance compared to 19 for the bascule bridge. The electrical repairs are not believed directly connected with malfunctions which caused the bascule bridge to be closed to highway traffic once last week and on July 24, Malkewitz said. Those closings were a hydraulic problem, which also is being worked on, he said.

Doctrinal Discussion Premature Between Synods

NEW ULM, Minn. — Delegates to the 44th biennial convention of the 400,000 member Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod (WELS) resolved here that "it would be premature at this time to begin formal doctrinal discussions with the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod." But, according to the chairman of the WELS Commission on Inter-Church Relations (CICR), President Carl J. Lawrence of the Wisconsin Lutheran seminary, Mequon, Wis., this resolution "does not preclude informal discussions in an informal setting." No discussions, formal or informal, actually have been proposed.

The CICR sent three observers to the Missouri Synod's convention held in Dallas. The Missouri and Wisconsin Synods are generally regarded as conservative in doctrine, but there have been no formal relations between them since the 400,000 member Wisconsin Synod suspended fellowship with the larger Missouri Synod in 1961, principally because of disagreement over relations with other less conservative denominations.

During the convention, the Rev. Oscar J. Naumann was re-elected to his 13th successive two-year term as president of the Synod.

Also re-elected were the Rev. Carl H. Muecke, first vice president; the Rev. George W. Biedt, second vice president, and Professor Heinrich J. Vogel, secretary.

Among other actions of the convention was the severing of fellowship with the small Evangelical Lutheran Confessional church in Germany.

The latter body merged last year with the Independent Evangelical Lutheran Church of Germany, another small body not in doctrinal agreement with the Wisconsin Synod.

The Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod added 24 congregations to its membership during the convention, boosting its total to more than 1,100 congregations in 45 states and three provinces of Canada.

The new congregations are located in 15 states.

The Synod also approved membership applications from 56 pastors, raising the total at about 940. In addition, 200 men and women joined the church's teaching ministry in the last year, bringing the total to nearly 1,000.

Delegates also voted to authorize 10 more missionaries to serve overseas. Three men would be called for Taiwan, two each for Indonesia, Africa and Japan and one for Columbia. The Synod already has 35 pastors in its overseas missionary program.

It was reported the Synod now has 238 mission congregations compared with 188 when the General Board for Home Missions was provided with an executive secretary in 1963.

Delegates took preliminary steps that may lead to expansion of its educational system to either Arizona or California. The training institutions for church workers are now concentrated in four midwestern states.

The Synod 'has 1,090 congregations in 45 states and three provinces of Canada. It also maintains missions in Zambia, Malawi, Cameroon, Puerto Rico, Mexico, Columbia, Japan, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Indonesia and India. For 84 years it has supported a thriving mission among the Apache Indians of Arizona.

Area churches who are members of the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod include St. Matthew's and Good Shepherd of Benton Harbor; Grace of St. Joseph and Eau Claire, St. Paul's of Stevensville, Sodas and South Haven, St. John's of Dowagiac and Allegan, Trinity of Bangor and Hope of Hartford.

Area delegates were Theodore Friesch of Sodas; Donald Hubeck, teacher at St. Matthew's Lutheran school, Benton Harbor; the Rev. K.W. Biedenbender, pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran church, Benton Harbor; the Rev. W.J. Zarling, pastor of Good Shepherd Lutheran church, Benton Harbor; David Kohn, teacher at Michigan Lutheran high school, and Donn Holtzhueter, teacher at St. Paul's Lutheran school, South Haven.

REV. BOB HARRINGTON

Carries Off-Beat Ministry To Clubs And Bars

by GEORGE W. CORNELL, AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The big, glib, Bob Harrington, "chaplain of Bourbon Street" in the jazz and strip section of old New Orleans, is loaded with one-liners for his trade: "You don't need 80-proof booze in your body when you've got the 100-proof Lord in your heart."

He packs such quick, crisp sayings into a roving, offbeat ministry, which he carries on not only in the street's, clubs and bars, but on records, radio, television and in guest appearances at conventions, organizational meetings, church rallies, state fairs and country music concerts.

An "inspirational entertainer," he styles himself, and he wraps his messages in showmanship. "It's the sizzle to help me sell my steaks," he says. And he lays on his zippy maxims of faith in rapid-fire order.

"It's fun being saved ... Fun not a beamie cap and propeller. Fun is having a hand on the handle of life ... It's having your act together, a faith to live by and a purpose to live for ... It's not what you stop doing, but what you start doing."

In an interview, the Rev. Mr. Harrington, 49, a 6-foot-2, 240-pound man in bright-blue leisure suit, a gold-colored pendant at his neck, said with characteristic gusto:

"I want every eye in America to see, every ear in America to hear and every heart in America to know it's fun being saved."

Of his work on his home, grounds where he and 10 assistants, three of them also ordained ministers, have their office and chapel on the second floor above Pete Fountain's club, mids the peep shows, topless bars, jazz halls and pick-up joints, he said:

"I can walk down Bourbon Street with a Bible in my hand, the Lord in my heart and a smile on my face, and people point. The crowds come from all over the world, not to see me, but to let them. The Lord Jesus identified with people where the people are."

Often, with management's permission, he'll do a 10-minute stint at one of the drink-and-dance places, in between strip acts:

"They're looking for happiness, and that's what I offer them," he said. "God didn't come into the world to damn men but to bless them, to give them happiness, tranquility, life."

He went on, his words crackling with snappy aphorisms from his repertoire: "People look for satisfaction in Thrills instead of in happiness. Thrills are an external kick that usually kick back. Happiness is an internal-eternal condition and you have to qualify to have it."

"It doesn't come from wishing. It comes from faith. To have fun is to live right. It takes discipline and dedication, but the results are peace, love, confidence, joy. When you give it, you get it. When you give love, you get love. If you plan just on getting it for self, you're soon got by the getting."

Shaking his head at the decline in traditional values, the homosexual advocacy of the normancy of their condition and promotion of unmarried sex, he said, "We've reached the point where right's wrong and wrong's right. Nowadays, what's normal, society thinks is abnormal."

He blamed the women's lib movement on American men becoming weak and effeminate. "The reason women are crying for liberation is that they're disappointed in modern men. Men are not the leaders God made them to be.

"Men have been majoring in everything except what they ought to be majoring in. Women would be the first to rally to men being leaders if they qualified. But most men today flunk the test. The greatest need in America today is real men dedicated to God, men who are men."

A Southern Baptist, the Rev. Mr. Harrington, who abandoned a high-paying business career and entered the ministry when he was 30, started his Bourbon Street ministry in 1962, and now appears increasingly at country-music gatherings.

"Bibed, dumb, dead and past feeling is the condition of a man without God, and it's the common condition in America," he said. "The greatest definition of success is to know the will of God for your life and be in it."

"Fun means being in balance, physically, spiritually and mentally. It doesn't eliminate the bumps on the road of life, but it provides a holy shock absorber that keeps you from blowing out."

The POWER of FAITH By WOODY ISHMAEL

THE NEW TESTAMENT No. 13 The Centurion

When Jesus came to Capernaum, a Roman centurion rushed to him and begged him to heal a servant boy who lay in bed paralyzed and suffering much pain. Jesus agreed to come and heal the centurion's servant.

"The centurion answered and said, Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldst come under my roof; but speak the word only, and my servant shall be healed." (Matthew 8:8)

"When Jesus heard it, he marvelled, and said to them that followed, Verily I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel. And Jesus said unto the centurion, Go thy way; and as thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee. And his servant was healed in the selfsame hour." (Matthew 8:10, 13)

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Belts Are For Pants

Dear Ann Landers: I'll get right to the point. I'm a guy who graduated from high school in June. My dad is considering buying a van from his brother. It's really neat, has all the extras including mag wheels. Dad borrowed it from his brother to try out for awhile.

He told me I could drive it, but only when he was alone because he didn't want to take any chances. Dad had to go out of town for three days. On the second day the temptation was too much. I took the van to show off for some of my pals. I was only gone a couple of hours. When I got home Dad was there — decided to shorten his trip.

The minute I walked into the house the yelling started. I never saw him so mad in my whole life. He gave me two choices, a whipping or losing the privilege of driving my own car for two months. I said, "Some choice. Why don't you just give me the electric chair?"

That got to him. He started slapping me on the backside.

Then he took off his belt and hit me with that. It hurt plenty. I only had on my tennis shirts. He also took my car keys and said, "You'll see these again when you're 18." (That's three months off.)

Mom thinks the punishment is too harsh. I think it's miserable. What do you think? — Rick

Dear Rick: I agree with both you and your mother. By the time this letter appears, I'll bet your dad has realized he acted in haste and has already softened the "sentence." After giving you a choice, he made his own and went further than he should have. Belts are for holding up pants — not for hitting people.

It's Logical

Dear Ann Landers: I have a solution for the woman whose husband likes her side of the bed better, once he is asleep. I used to have the same problem.

When the snoring started, I grabbed my pillow, got out of bed and crawled in on his side.

It took 10 seconds and no arguing. Funny thing, after a week or so he stayed on his own side. — Victorious

Dear Vic: How logical! I never would have thought of it.

Kid Problem

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sick and tired of the way you come out for teenage privacy. The reason these kids insist on privacy is because they don't want their parents to find the pot or birth-control pills they have hidden in their bedrooms or other secret places. They think nothing of invading OUR privacy — 24 hours a day — demanding the run of the house, doing as they darn well please. They are rude, sloppy and want to do their own thing. No one is supposed to question what they are up to — or into.

Your children must be at least in their 30s so what do YOU know about teenagers? A kid's room is where his parents let him live, so knock it off. — From Tennessee

Dear Tim: I don't know what kind of problems you are having with your teenagers but I'll bet they are considerable. Kids live up to or down to their parents' opinion of them. That's YOUR problem.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (24 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11895, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South's three-diamond bid is worthy of note. Even though North had responded one no-trump there might well be a diamond slam if North held reasonably good diamonds. As it was, South arrived at the very normal spade game.

He ruffed the second club, led a diamond to dummy's ace and a diamond back to his king. Then he played his ace of trumps!

After that the rest of the play was easy. He ruffed his seven of diamonds with dummy's last trump, returned to his hand with the ace of hearts, eventually lost one trump and one heart, but had his contract safely in hand.

The game was duplicate and South was surprised to find that he had almost scored a top. It seems that most declarers had forgotten to play one round of trumps. This gave West a chance to ruff the seven of diamonds with his singleton 10 of trumps.

This fairly simple hand shows the rule for trump play. Declarer should play as many rounds of trumps as he can afford. In this case he could afford to play that one important round.

We keep getting questions about whether or not we open four-card major suits.

The answer is that we do, but only when all other openings are really unsatisfactory. Thus, no one could get us to open anything but one spade with:

Your Birthday

For Sunday, Aug. 21, 1977

Keep your eyes open this coming year for ways you can beautify or change your place of residence. It can be done in a way that will cost you no more than you're presently spending.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Avoid applying pressure in order to bring others to terms today. Rather than speeding up things, you'll only cause greater delay. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You have a tendency today not to trust your instincts, but to do things to please others. This will only serve to inhibit your own natural abilities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Lend nothing to one who already borrowed things you prize and failed to return them. You'll only add to this person's bulging inventory.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Don't let vanity or pride overshadow your nobler qualities today. There's no shame in second place if you really have done your best.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Stay away from companions with dominating personalities today. They may lack you into a corner. You're in no mood to tolerate that.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you try to inject a serious note into a light gathering today, you'll meet with dire results. Your companions won't tolerate it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Try not to let indecisive companions throw a monkey wrench into your plans today. Paced on your own if they can't give you a quick "Yes" or "No."

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Normally you're the first to praise those undertaking a difficult task. Today, what you have to say may be in a discouraging vein.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you'd be wise to gamble, even on yourself. It would be sheer folly to stake anything of importance on the performance of anyone else.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In your dealings today, make sure you accurately define the word "concession." To gain something of value, you should give up something comparable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll probably be further ahead today by buying the finished product rather than attempt to do it yourself. The "simple" directions often aren't.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is a day when you'll realize the greatest pleasure from the most inexpensive diversions. High-priced pastimes just aren't for you.

Your Birthday

Aug. 22, 1977

Don't discount money-making propositions you learn of from family contacts this coming year. They may put you on the track of something worthwhile even though they are not experts in that type of enterprise.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An aura of glamour hovers about you today. It's not something you have to be affectations about — just be yourself. Want to know to whom you're romantically suited? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Others are inspired to do things advantageous to you today. The reason is: They remember your past favors and want to reciprocate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Under no conditions should you doff the mantle of leadership in matters important to you. You can hack things better than most.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Follow any hunches you may have in ways to make money or gain personally today. That inner voice isn't about to steer you wrong.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even though you may not be aware of it, many eyes are upon you today. Be on your best behavior. Others will emulate your actions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't let even your closest associates in on your secret goals and ambitions today. Though they won't harm you, they just won't understand.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Plans you've made for the future should be revised to meet present-day realities. Keep this in mind and your chances for success are pretty affly.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Concentrate today on worthy and lofty goals. You're a winner. It would be a shame to blow it on a minor race when you could win the Derby.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Good ideas that are passed on to you are enhanced by your lunch today. You have the ability to crystallize and refine them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have the knack today of changing outmoded and obsolete systems into something new and useful. This is especially true workwise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be an astute observer today. Watch how a close associate handles people with problems. If you learn his technique you could profit by it later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Should you do something today that has no discernible benefit for you but which greatly affects the welfare of others, it will yield substantial dividends.

HOME BUILDING & OTHER CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Well-Cared-For Residence Starts With Pencil And Paper

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

At least once a year, you should use a portion of one day for no other purpose than to decide what must be done when you have the energy to do something.

It applies, of course, to home owners, who are continually making mental notes of things that have to be done in the future. Most of them never actually get done.

One possible solution is a deliberate check up in which a pencil and notebook are an integral part of the process. You simply make a tour of the house, taking plenty of time to observe everything. Write down anything that needs attention.

What this does is to give you a list that you can refer to any time you get the urge to fix something. Even if the urges are few and far between, the list is permanent. You cannot excuse inaction on the grounds you simply forgot what it was you wanted to do.

As you do the checking, overlook nothing, no matter how insignificant it might seem. That tiny gap between the wall and a window, for example, might not be large enough to admit a pencil, but if left neglected could become an entranceway for a driving rain that ruins an entire wall.

Check all openings, especially around doors, window frames and places where dissimilar materials are joined. A quarter's worth of caulking compound could save you hundreds of dollars later.

Look at the gutters and downspouts. Is the flashing intact at the point where the chimney comes out of the roof? Do the window wells need a cleaning? How about those flagstones in the walkway that have sunk a bit? Mortar started to deteriorate in the brick wall? And don't forget the fence that is beginning to tilt.

All right, now you have a long list. What are you going to do about it?

Home Yard Fixin'

By JAMES E. NEIBAUER Berrien Agricultural Agent TOO LATE

It's too late to do much about apple scab now but it's a good time to become acquainted with it because the symptoms can be found easily. On crabapple the leaves will show dark spots about 1/4 inch across. The leaves may turn yellow and fall off. Almey, Hops and Jay Darling varieties are very susceptible to scab. Making up the leaves this fall and either burning or composting them will help reduce the infection. Fungicide sprays of Captan, Phitox or Benlate are registered in the spring to prevent infection. These same chemicals can be used on persimmon (Scarlet Firethorn) to prevent the berries from turning black. Spray at bloom time.

MITE

Even though the weather has turned rainy and cooler, the mite population on spruce, roses, beans and many other plants remains high. Leaves get a bronze or yellow cast. Fine webbing can also be seen. Shake a branch over a sheet of white paper and look for tiny moving specks. Malathion or Kelthane can be used for control. PLEAS

Homeowners returning from vacation sometimes find that fleas left in the house for two weeks with no pets around will jump on the homeowner on his return. Treat the pet, clean the house and then consider chemical treatment with malathion, ronnel and methoxychlor with piperonyl butoxide plus pyrethrum. An excellent bulletin on flea control (15-1079) is available free from the Cooperative Extension Service in the courthouse, St. Joseph. Stop or call 883-7111, Ext. 204.

CRABAPPLE LEAVES Showing Scab Damage

Plan Ahead To Get More From Your Shelf Project

By HERB ALEXANDER NEA Writer

Few houses have enough shelves. Builders seldom provide the extra material and devote the time needed for adequate shelf space.

Enough shelves, well planned, will provide plenty of convenience and save valuable space. It's important, however, to plan. How can you get the most out of it? What will it hold? Will the items you store there be moved or will they remain there?

Even bookshelves vary in size. A depth of eight inches is minimum for a novel, but 12 inches is better. Some oversize books will need even larger shelves.

Remember that the actual height of a book or record is not enough for the height of the shelf. Allow a couple of inches so you can get your fingers in.

Remember, too, that books are heavy. Too long a span without support and the weight will cause the shelf to sag. Three feet is wide enough; better yet is a support every 24 or 30 inches.

You may not want fixed positions for your shelves. A variety of hardware is available to construct adjustable shelves. Metal strips along the inside of the uprights will hold movable clips, which in turn support the ends of the shelves. Or you can get metal strips that go on the wall, or the back of the shelf unit, and which hold brackets to support the shelves.

For fixed shelves, an ordinary butt joint is amazingly strong. Glue and a few nails through the vertical support and into the edges of the shelves will hold all but the heaviest load.

A cleat, simply made from scrap lumber, provides extra support. Fasten strips of lumber in the vertical supports and rest the shelf on them. Run another along the back support or the wall for extra support.

Using cleats is the easy way to tie a shelf or several shelves to a wall. Nail a cleat to the studs. Place the shelf on the cleat and nail. Put a couple of brackets of wood or metal underneath for support if it is a lone shelf. If more than one, add vertical supports by nailing to both cleat and shelf and continuing.

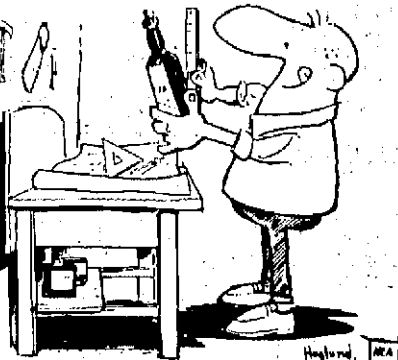

In a free-standing unit of shelves remember that fixed shelves will help keep it rigid. Adjustable shelves will not. In the latter case, make a frame that can stand by itself.

Free-standing units, even with fixed shelves, may lean one way or the other. Add a back and you can move it around and it will remain sturdy.

If you wish to leave it in a particular place and can use a wall for the back, toenail through the top of the unit into wall studs to give it strength.

Use economy grades of lumber for catch-all shelves in a garage, shed or a closet. Use better wood for exposed shelves or part of the furniture, especially if they are to receive a clear finish. Shelf stock is generally one-inch lumber. You can use thinner stock, but that needs support.

Energy-Saving Homes Sell Well

NEW YORK (AP) — Builders of energy-conserving homes report their homes are "selling well," according to a recent survey conducted by Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp.

Seven hundred energy-conserving home builders in 50 states were sampled and responses to a detailed questionnaire were received from 238 builders in 42 states, each of whom built an average of 37 homes a year.

Eighty-nine per cent of the respondents, whose energy-conserving homes were completed and had been on the market long enough to evaluate market acceptance, said their homes were "selling well."

CIA Suspects Israel Got Missing Uranium

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators are trying to determine whether weapons-grade uranium unaccounted for at an Apollo, Pa., processing plant was diverted to Israel as the CIA reportedly believes.

A congressional source said Friday the CIA has "really overwhelming" circumstantial evidence that the nuclear material went to Israel, but can't prove it in a court of law.

The Israeli government denies knowledge of a diversion, and two government agencies remain publicly confident that none of the material was taken.

An Energy Research and Development Administration official says his agency stands by a 1966 government finding that no nuclear material was taken from the Apollo plant or any similar facility. The stand is backed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

But officials from both ERDA and the NRC concede the Apollo plant has been unable to trace 361 pounds of enriched uranium found to be unaccounted for in 1966.

Although estimates of the amount of enriched uranium required to construct a nuclear weapon vary, a U.S. official earlier this month placed the figure at about 40 pounds.

The House investigations are being conducted by two panels, one headed by Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., and the other by Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich. In addition to trying to learn whether material was diverted, the investigators want to know whether the U.S. government might have been involved.

The CIA reportedly came to its conclusion after investigating a web of relationships and activities involving the plant, the congressional source said. The source said the spy agency's evidence includes patterns of travel to Israel by officers and employees of the company that operated the Apollo plant at the time, plus a corporate connection to an Israeli firm.

The CIA disclosed last year that Israel has the capability to make nuclear weapons. The source said CIA investigators indicate they were led to the Pennsylvania company by searching out the most likely source of Israel's weapons material.

The Nuclear Materials and Equipment Corp., which operated the plant at Apollo in 1965, has said it believes the material that is unaccounted for was lost in pipes and refuse over several years.

Members of both houses of Congress called for hearings earlier this month when federal officials conceded publicly for the first time that an estimated 8,437 pounds of uranium and plutonium destined for construction of atomic weapons has disappeared since World War II.

The officials said at the time there is no evidence of theft or of a black market of the material.

"We believe the missing plutonium and uranium can be traced to overestimates, machining scrap losses and unmeasurable amounts bound up in equipment and pipes," said Edward B. Giller, deputy assistant administrator at ERDA.

Milliken Plan Would Cut 'Big Mac' Tolls

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Lower tolls on the Mackinac Bridge and a boost for Upper Peninsula tourism are foreseen if Michigan wins its bid for $4 million in federal funds to pay off the span's construction costs.

Gov. William Milliken announced his quest for money Friday during a speech in the Upper Peninsula. He said the plan would promote the U.P.'s commercial and industrial development, and noted the economic outlook for the area already is getting better.

If Congress approved the funding, Milliken said, auto fares on the bridge would be reduced from $1.50 to 50 cents. Truck fares could be cut from the $1.50 to $0.50 range to $1 to $3, he said.

The governor, who attended the Upper Peninsula State Fair in Escanaba on Friday, said all income from the bridge then could be used solely for maintenance and operations. Last year, the state collected $4.3 million in fares. "Early bond retirement and consequent reduction in crossing fares would be a boon to the entire state, and particularly the Upper Peninsula," he said.

The $99.8 million bridge was opened in 1957. The bond debt now stands at about $43 million, and the last bonds are expected to be paid off in about 1985, 10 years ahead of schedule. Milliken wants Congress to take the bridge, which carries Interstate 75 across the Straits of Mackinac, into the interstate freeway system. That would make it eligible for 90 per cent federal funding. He said federal legislation will be proposed this fall, to be included in the 1978 federal highway aid act.

Illegal Toxin Dumping Alleged

MONTAGUE, Mich. (AP) — A former employee of Hooker Chemical Co. says the firm illegally dumped nearly 500,000 gallons of toxic waste between 1970 and 1978.

Warren Dobson, former chief operator in the firm's fine chemicals division, asked Muskegon County authorities Friday to charge Hooker with illegal dumping. Hooker in part denied the accusations.

Dobson said the waste included C-56, a dangerous ingredient of pesticides and plastics. The U.S. Army once considered using C-56 vapour in warfare but finally rejected it as too deadly.

In a statement released Friday, Hooker admitted burying C-56 and other wastes at the plant until 1972. The firm denied any similar burials since then, although it said some inert waste containing tiny portions of chemicals akin to C-56 were buried until early 1978.

Dobson quit Hooker more than a year ago, claiming hazardous working conditions. He had worked at Hooker for five years.

Prosecutor Gerald Warner said he will ask the state Department of Natural Resources to check groundwater near the plant for traces of the chemicals and would consult with the state Attorney General's office before deciding whether to charge Hooker.

The department already is testing groundwater at the plant and officials said some C-56 contamination has been found. But officials said the extent of the contamination cannot be determined until tests are completed next month.

"We were aware of some improper disposal of waste on Hooker's property, but not of this magnitude," said James Truchan, the DNR's chief of environmental litigation. "If the stuff is in the groundwater and gets into the wells, we're talking about a serious health hazard."

Hooker already is storing about 1,500 gallons of C-56 waste at its plant here. That material was removed from a Montcalm County landfill earlier this summer on orders from a Circuit Court judge following public protests about burial of the chemical.

No C-56 has been made by Hooker since February. The firm needs state approval to resume production. In addition, most Hooker workers have been on strike for months.

Cleanup To Cost Millions

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP) — Now in violation of federal law, six major Michigan firms that discharge wastes into waterways will spend $147 million to clean up their acts over the next 42 months.

In about a month the companies also will pay the state $3.4 million in fines for missing a July 1 federal deadline for compliance with stricter discharge rules.

Agreements reached by the state and the companies in lieu of long, expensive court suits won a unanimous final approval Friday from the state Water Resources Commission.

Under the agreements, the companies will meet the federal standards by specific deadlines.

The six firms are:

- Detroit Edison Co., $55 million to correct excessive discharges, $122,000 fine.
- Ford Motor Co., $38 million dollars, $1.6 million fine.
- Great Lakes Steel Corp., of Detroit, $45.4 million, $15 million fine.
- Abitibi Corp., Alpena, $2.5 million, $200,000 fine.
- Pennwalt Chemical Co., Wyandotte, $3 million, $150,000 fine.
- Hooker Chemical Co., Montague, $2 million, $75,000 fine.

Dow Notes Sterility In Workers

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — Dow Chemical Co. has reported to the federal government that some of its employees became sterile after exposure to a chemical used to kill pests in soil.

Dow's medical director, Dr. H. Charles Scharnweber, said Friday that "some" cases of low or absent sperm were discovered among more than 40 workers from the firm's Magbolia, Ark., plant who were tested.

Scharnweber refused to say how many men were sterile. But the company has reported to the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health in Cincinnati that 12 of the first 14 workers tested had low or absent sperm counts.

And that worries hundreds of Midland, Mich., workers who handled the chemical while it was produced at Dow's plant here until two years ago. On Thursday, Dow confirmed it had made the chemical here.

Groucho Marx Is Dead At 86

when the comedian's grandson, 27-year-old Andrew, was named permanent guardian.

Groucho, whose given name was Julius, was born Oct. 2, 1890, in New York City, the son of Jewish immigrants.

His father, Sam, was an East Side tailor who lived to 101. His mother, Minnie, was the daughter of a wandering magician and sister of Al Hirsch of the famed Gallagher and Sheen vaudeville team. She raised her five sons in poverty but managed to save enough to give the boys music lessons. She was immortalized on Broadway in the musical "Minnie's Boys."

Groucho was the third of five sons. His brothers were, in order of birth: Leonard (Chico), Arthur (Harpo), Milton (Gummo), and Herbert (Zeppo).

The brothers never considered themselves a comedy act until one day in Nacogdoches, Tex., when a runaway mule started a minor riot outside the theater and caused most of the audience to leave.

The infuriated brothers began joking and lured the audience back inside with their antics — their comedy act was born.

The brothers' first movie was a film version of "The Cocoanuts" in 1929. "Animal Crackers" was next, followed by "Monkey Business," "Horse Feathers," "Duck Soup," "A Night at the Opera" and "A Day at the Races."

The brothers retired in 1941 after "The Big Store," but returned in 1946 to make "A Night in Casablanca" and "Love Happy" in 1948.

Groucho and his first wife, now Mrs. Ruth Garrity, were divorced in 1943 after a 22-year marriage. Their two children, Arthur and Miriam, are writers. He and his second wife, Kay Gorcey, were divorced in 1950. They had a daughter, Melinda.

Groucho was divorced from his third wife, Eden, in 1968 and was ordered to pay a $1 million settlement. The former Mrs. Marx told the judge, "He said he was thinking of trading me in for a new cook — and a new wife."

He was not married at the time of his death.

POMPOSITY SUFFERS: Groucho Marx goes through a routine in 1945 with Margaret Dumont, grande dame of many of his films. Groucho's unique blend of madness and cynicism was in full flower when deflating pomposity, especially when exhibited by Margaret Dumont in the roles she played opposite him. This photo was taken when the two appeared on ABC Television's "Hollywood Palace." Groucho died Friday in Los Angeles of pneumonia. (AP Wirephoto)

Permit Still Required

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — People who own land along the Great Lakes that has been bought or leased from the state still must have a permit before filling or dredging underwater areas. That's the opinion of state Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley who ruled on a question from Howard Tanner, director of the Department of Natural Resources. "The fact that a person holds title to the property does not prevent the state from exercising its public trust and police power responsibilities," Kelley said. Tanner asked specifically about Lake St. Clair, but Kelley's opinion applies to all Great Lakes owners.

Aged Women Tells Of Ordeal

DETROIT (AP) — An 88-year-old Detroit woman has testified she was robbed, beaten, raped and left to die by a man dissatisfied with what she paid him for painting her apartment. A prosecutor called the incident "one of the most sickening cases I've seen in my five years here." The elderly woman, a Polish immigrant who speaks little English, was aided by an interpreter as she told her story to a Detroit Recorder's Court judge. Then Terry Canoy, 21, of Detroit, was bound over for trial on charges of first-degree criminal sexual conduct and armed robbery.

Famous Groucho Cracks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Groucho Marx was as famous for his one-line wisecracks as for his bushy eyebrows and duck walk. Here are a few:

Woman: (passionately). "Groucho: 'If I were any closer, I'd be in back of you.'"

Man: "You love your brother, don't you?"

Groucho: "No, but I'm used to him."

Man: Stop at a Western Union office. I want to wire my father.

Groucho: What's the matter? Can't he stand up by himself?

Man: "He doesn't believe in wearing shirts."

Groucho: "Oh, an aesthetist, eh?"

He once resigned from a prominent country club, claiming, "I couldn't join any organization that would accept me as a member."

One night the daughter of actor Alan Ladd appeared on Marx' radio and TV quiz show, "You Bet Your Life." She remarked that her father was in the movies.

"Is your dad Laddie, son of Laddie?" Groucho asked.

On another show, Marx told an Egyptian contestant: I used to know a red-hot mummy from Egypt. We were terribly wrapped up in each other."

Once a jackpot hopeful said he designed everything from a safety pin to a locomotive.

"Wait a minute — why would a locomotive need safety pins?" Groucho interrupted. "Oh, I guess when they change engines."

Disputes Report

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Teamsters Union organizer Charles "Chuckle" O'Brien, self-described foster son of misling former Teamsters leader James R. Hoffa, has been using non-union labor to build a $138,000 home, the Fort Lauderdale News reports.

O'Brien disputed the report, and added, "It isn't possible to build a house in South Florida with 100 per cent union labor. I told my wife to try to use as much union help and products as are available in South Florida."

Buses Rolling Again

DETROIT (AP) — Bus service between Detroit and its suburbs has returned to normal as drivers ratified a new contract, ending a wildcat strike that had forced some 38,000 commuters to find other transportation most of the week. Union members endorsed the new pact by a 3-to-1 margin, according to a dispatcher at the terminal where the votes were counted.

Eleven Cents More Hourly

DETROIT (AP) — An 11-cent an hour cost-of-living increase has gone into effect for 730,000 auto workers, with the average hourly wage for production line employees at General Motors Corp. rising to $7.96. The increase, resulting from a boost in the federal Consumer Price Index, raised to 37 cents the total COL increases which have resulted from nationwide auto industry labor contracts negotiated last fall. In many plants covered by agreements with the United Auto Workers there also was a five cent carryover from the old contracts, giving auto workers a total COL allowance of 42 cents an hour, effective in September.

Juvenile Waiver Bid Due

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Washtenaw County officials are seeking juvenile court permission to try 15-year-old accused sniper Jody Munson as an adult. Prosecutor William Delbey said he will file such a petition Monday before Juvenile Court Judge Francis O'Brien, who will set a date for a hearing before he rules on the request. Munson is accused of critically wounding a paperboy, Dennis Doughty, 14, and also wounding Dr. Charles Haseltine, 63, of Redlands, Calif. Both were shot by a masked sniper who fired on them with a .30-caliber rifle from the roof of an abandoned, one-story water pumping station. Munson was hooked on two charges of assault with intent to commit murder.

Judge Holds Up V-M Liquidation

capital.

Miller said he still believes the company could be profitable with adequate financing. He said that at one point, the firm sold designs for three new turntables because it did not have the capital to begin production.

"We vigorously sought financing," Miller said.

"Even the New York city blackout worked against us," he said. The blackout stopped payment of loan from a New York financial firm and as a consequence, checks started bouncing, Miller said.

The lack of cash coincided with a critical shortage of certain parts. At that point, the decision was made to cease operations and file for bankruptcy, he said.

Miller testified that as president, he received a salary of $775 a week and was paid through July 8. He said he owns 98.8 per cent of outstanding shares.

He said he made loans to the company totaling $448,500 and has filed a claim for them as a creditor.

V-M laid off about 250 employees when it closed and was unable to meet its final payroll. The statement of affairs shows back wages owed of $83,173.

The U.S. Labor Department has scheduled a meeting Tuesday at 10 a.m. at Benton Harbor high school for all employees who did not receive final pay.

Labor department personnel will help the employees fill out forms needed to claim the back wages.

In addition to salaries, V-M also owes a total of $481,979 in taxes.

V-M owes $320,717 in back taxes to the city of Benton Harbor; $41,797 to Benton Harbor in penalties and interest; $25,751 in property taxes; $56,284 to the federal government for IRS withholding and federal unemployment taxes; and $37,430 to the state for employee withholding and employment security commission taxes.

The statement showed a secured claim of $367,895 and unsecured claims without priority of $2,920,520. There are 310 unsecured claims, according to Nims.

The secured claim was from the A.J. Armstrong Co. Inc. of New York which had loaned money to the firm.

Book value of the firm's real property was listed at $682,518. The real property includes 15 parcels covering about two blocks in Benton Harbor.

Other assets were $26 cash on hand; $1,707 in deposits; $51 in automotive equipment; $18,082 in office equipment; $13,088 in machinery; $625,000 in inventory; $16,520 in other tangible property; $986 in patents and intangibles; $336,540 in other liquidated debts; and $17,208 in interest on insurance policies.

The low book value on machinery was due to allowable depreciation. On the witness stand, Miller testified that the machinery would be worth about $1 million on the open market.

In two related matters, hearings on actions brought against V-M by the city of Benton Harbor and the Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. were adjourned to Sept. 2 by stipulation of all parties.

The city of Benton Harbor is seeking to auction off V-M personal property for payment of back taxes. I&M is seeking to cut electric service to the plant unless a deposit is made. Both parties have been prevented from acting under a restraining order issued by Judge Nims.

Buyer Pays $2,806 For Top Steer

By JOE HERMAN
Staff Writer

Pam Durm's grand champion steer paid off for her Friday at the Berrien County Youth Fair to the tune of $2,806.

Miss Durm's 1,220 pound Simmental Angus was the prize attraction at annual livestock auction held yesterday at the fairgrounds. The animal was purchased by representatives of Bonanza restaurant in Benton Harbor for $2.30 a pound. The price is well below last year's record high $2.75, but good enough to rank as the second highest price ever paid at the fair for a market steer.

Sheep and hogs were also auctioned off yesterday, with Russow feed mill of Buchanan buying the grand champions in both categories. Mary LaSala, 11, of Niles received $3.40 a pound for her 110 pound prize lamb, while Scott Foster, 18, of Niles, got $2.75 a pound for his champion hog.

The Farmers and Merchants National bank of Benton Harbor bought the reserve champion sheep from Pam Koebel, 18, of Berrien Springs, for $2 a pound. The champion pen of two hogs shown by Bill Foster, of Niles, sold for $0.80 a pound to Baroda City Mills, Baroda.

While the auction was going on in the grandstand, the judging of horses continued for the fourth straight day in the ring only a hundred yards away. Rachele Watson of Buchanan, and Michele Riley of Stevensville, were awarded champion and reserve champion ribbons in the trail classes competition. The trail classes require the rider to maneuver the horse through a course of obstacles, being judged on both skill and time.

Thursday's horse judging continued into the small hours of the morning on Friday. Vanessa Nelson, of Buchanan, continued her winning way at the Youth Fair capturing the grand champion western pleasure category. Nelson's awards from previous fairs include two consecutive horse showmanship trophies and the 1975 overall showmanship award.

Patricia Dubitz of Benton Harbor won double honors for park seat and English pleasure categories.

Other winners from Thursday's horse competition include: Allison Kerner, Buchanan, for champion working hunter over fences; Ann Campbell, St. Joseph, champion hunt seat; Cathy Dudding, St. Joseph, champion English.

Julieann Krone, Eau Claire, pony showmanship; Gary Peter, Niles, pony with cart; Anita Skidmore, Benton Harbor, pony under 47 inches; and Donna Best, Niles, champion contest horse 48 inches and over. Cindy Edgecomb, of Three Oaks, won the champion contest pony award for the 47 to 56 inch height.

In the only other animal judging held yesterday at the Youth Fair, Scott Bock, 14, of Buchanan, proved he is as handy with dogs as he is with goats. Bock, who won the champion goat showmanship award on Thursday, won the overall champion award for dog obedience and handling on Friday.

The reserve honors in the dog handling competition went to Brenda Knapp, 16, of New Troy, and her Irish Setter named "Murphy." Kathy Moody, 19, of Berrien Springs, was named as champion showman in the dog competition.

Friday's attendance was 21,657, about 3,000 off the pace of last year's record rate. A good crowd is expected for Saturday to watch the tractor pulling contests throughout the day and The Letterman in the grandstand at 7 and 9 tonight.

Motorecycle, Car Collide

Benton township police said John Berli, 21, of 483 West Glenford road, Lincoln township, was injured about 4:05 p.m. Friday, when a motorcycle he was driving and an auto collided on M-139 about a quarter-mile south of Napier avenue.

Berli was not hospitalized, police indicated. Driver of the auto was identified as Esther E. Burgeson, 80, of 341 Hunter drive, Fairplum, who was uninjured. She was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way, police said.

Two Crushed To Death

FIFE LAKE, Mich. (AP) — An oil rig worker and a baby have been crushed to death in separate northwest Michigan accidents. Alvin Howes, 21, Manistota, died early Friday at Amoen Rig No. 5 when hit by a heavy object, believed to be a concrete block, apparently dropped by a crane. Fourteen-month-old Mollie Simond was killed in Manistota the day before when the car she apparently was playing under rolled over her. She was dead on arrival at Kalkaska Medical Center, Antrim County sheriff's deputies said.

New Buffalo Band Director To Be 'Roasted' At Dinner

NEW BUFFALO — A dinner and "roast" honoring Thomas Holets, former New Buffalo high school band director, will be held Tuesday, Aug. 30, at 7:30 p.m., in the high school cafeteria here, according to Mrs. Maryanne Itabe, event chairman. Tickets for the dinner and roast are $1 per person and may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Itabe, Marge Schultz, Pat Grant or at Buffalo Drugstore.

The senior high band at New Buffalo, under the direction of Holets, received 12 straight divisional ratings in district competition. Holets will remain on at New Buffalo as a business teacher. Richard D'Arcangelo, 27, the school's new band director from Caro, Mich., will also be introduced at the dinner.

License Branch Due For Dowagiac

DOWAGIAC — A full scale Michigan secretary of state branch office is to be established in Dowagiac, City Manager Henry E. Graper Jr. announced yesterday.

He said Perry Miller, manager of Region V, of the Michigan Department of State, confirmed state approval of the branch office.

The full-time office would provide both driver licenses and auto license plates. A part-time license plate operation here was closed by the state this summer and its operations transferred to Cassopolis.

Graper said city officials and local auto dealers have long contended that Dowagiac area residents should not have to travel to Cassopolis or Niles for licensing services.

Graper and Dowagiac Chamber of Commerce President Joe Mallow have been working for some 18 months to secure the full service office for the city.

Graper also said the city may be able to accommodate the state department with rental facilities in the new Inter-Modal Transportation center being set up at the Dowagiac railroad depot.

The city owns the depot and recently was awarded a $50,000 state highway department grant towards the depot's renovation.

Boat Sinks; Family Of 5 Unhurt

COVERT — Five members of a Portage, Mich., family escaped injury yesterday after their boat was swamped by waves in Lake Michigan north of the Palisades nuclear power plant.

State police from the South Haven post said a 16-foot-long outboard owned by Dick Harvey of Portage was swamped by three-foot-high waves as the family attempted to leave the beach.

Harvey, his wife and their three children were able to wade to shore.

Troopers said there was about $1,000 damage to the boat.

Pullman Transfer Appeal Won't Be Heard Til '78

By TOM SAWYER
Staff Writer

The local denial of a proposal to transfer the Pullman area from the Bloomingdale school district to the Fennville district will not get an appeal hearing before the state board of education until after Jan. 1. According to Raymond Godmer, department of education hearing officer, the appeal hearing has not yet been scheduled. He said his calendar is booked through December and expected a hearing date will not be set until after the first of the year.

The boards of education for the Allegan and Van Buren county intermediate school districts last month voted to deny the transfer.

That denial has been appealed by several Pullman area residents.

Pullman is located in Allegan county, along with Fennville. The Pullman area, and its 343 students who would be affected by the transfer, are currently part of the Bloomingdale school district which is located mostly in Van Buren county.

The transfer was first proposed to the Bloomingdale board earlier this summer by a citizen steering committee. A survey of the Pullman area showed a majority of residents favored the transfer. The Bloomingdale board approved the transfer.

However, the Fennville school board opposed the move, contending Pullman residents would continue paying toward a Bloomingdale bond debt and would not contribute towards Fennville's bonded indebtedness.

The Pullman area became part of the Bloomingdale district almost 10 years ago. At that time Pullman area residents voted to join the district. Bloomingdale offered to allow Pullman area high school students to attend Bloomingdale high school if the residents would vote on whether to allow the district to join the Bloomingdale district.

Pullman was then a separate K-8 district. Pullman area residents then voted to be annexed to Bloomingdale.

The approving vote came despite a recommendation from the Allegan county intermediate school district that the Pullman and Fennville districts be consolidated.

The current dispute has prompted a letter from State Rep. Edgar Fredricks (R-Holland) to the Michigan Department of Education.

Fredricks said he has received many letters from Fennville residents who are urging that the transfer appeal be denied by the state board.

He asked the state board to consider the arguments of 10 years ago, present sentiments and suggested that "...if changes are to be made, as many people as possible should be in agreement on the conclusion."

Man Found Innocent And Guilty

A Berrien Circuit court jury deliberated for 2½ hours last night before finding a Benton township man not guilty of first degree criminal sexual conduct and guilty of charges of larceny from a person.

The prosecution and defense in the two-day trial of James Fryson, 24, of 861 Warrick, presented different theories on the case.

The prosecution claimed the defendant forced a woman to have sex in a motel room and then robbed her of $100 at gunpoint.

The defense contended the couple voluntarily had sex and the woman gave the man $100 afterwards.

The prosecution claimed the offenses occurred March 25 at a Royalltownship motel. The defense agreed about the date and place, but denied there was any wrongdoing.

Opposing counsel in the two-day trial were Assistant Prosecutor Scott Beatty and St. Joseph Atty. Harry Creager.

Ferency To Address Van Buren Meeting

DECATUR — Zolton Ferency, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, will be guest speaker at the August meeting of the Van Buren county Democrats, Wednesday, at 8 p.m. at the Decatur township hall, according to Virginia Flaugher, a spokesman for the group. Plans for the organization's third annual "Salute to Labor" also will be completed at the meeting. The "salute" will be a barbecue and family fun day on Labor Day, Sept. 5, at the Covert Civic center in Covert township.

Six Area Students Nursing Graduates

DOWAGIAC — Four Van Buren county women and two from Berrien county were among students who recently completed one-year practical nursing certificate programs at Southwestern Michigan College here, according to college officials. One-year certificates were presented to Theresa McFarlin of Bangor, Alexis Guerrero of Paw Paw, Linda L. Wickett of Decatur, Sandra K. Maurer of Bloomingdale, Laverne Hayes of Buchanan and Pamela J. Hill of Watervliet.

Blood Drive Thursday At Dowagiac Church

DOWAGIAC — The Cass county chapter of the American Red Cross will hold a blood drive here next Thursday from noon to 6 p.m., according to chapter officials. The drive will be held at the First United Methodist church, 220 North Lowe. The goal for the drive is 150 pints. Last year the August drive netted 137 pints.

Foster's Fast Beat Goes On With 40th, 41st Homers

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The beat goes on for George Foster — and the beatings go on for the New York Mets.

Foster continued to succeed with the long ball and the Mets continued to fail Friday night as the major league's leading slugger blasted his 40th and 41st home runs to help the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-1, 4-3 doubleheader sweep.

The power display by Cincinnati's lead left-fielder gave him a special distinction, although he tended to play down the fact that he had become the first major leaguer to hit the 40-homer plateau since 1973.

The last time that figure was reached, four players did it — Willie Stargell had 44 with the Pittsburgh Pirates and Dave Johnson had 43, Darrell Evans 41 and Hank Aaron 40, all with the Atlanta Braves.

Foster's RBI total reached an astronomical figure of 116 after Friday night's performance. That averages out to nearly one a game.

Just for the record, though, Foster is within shooting distance of Babe Wilson's National League record of 56 home runs in one season and is 20 away from Roger Maris' major league mark of 61. The Reds have 40 games left.

The defeats were the eighth and ninth for the Mets in their last 11 games.

In other National League games, the St. Louis Cardinals bombed the San Diego Padres 12-4, the Chicago Cubs defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-2, the Philadelphia Phillies outscored the Houston Astros 9-5, the Pittsburgh Pirates turned back the San Francisco Giants 6-1 and Atlanta trimmed Montreal 3-3 in the first game of a doubleheader before dropping a 7-2 decision in the nightcap.

Mike Tyson drove in six runs with a home run, double and single, pacing a 16-hit attack that carried St. Louis over San Diego.

The stocky Tyson, a .231 hitter at the start of the game, smacked a bases-loaded double, driving in three runs during a five-run rally in the first inning.

Tyson belted his seventh homer of the season following a single by Ken Reitz in the fourth and capped his offensive flurry with a run-scoring single during a five-run fifth.

Pitcher Larry Christenson hit a three-run homer and benefited from three other homers, winning his eighth straight game as Philadelphia beat Houston. Christenson, 125, homered over the center field wall in the sixth inning with Bob Boone and Ted Sizemore on base. The homer, his second this year, came off Houston starter Joe Niekro, 8-5, who gave up eight runs and nine hits in six innings.

The Phillies got three runs in the first on Bake McBride's single, a double by Greg Luzinski and Richie Humber's 15th homer. Boone hit his 10th homer of the year in the second and Jay Johnstone hit his ninth in the sixth.

John Candelaria pitched a five-hitter and Bill Robinson hit a two-run homer to lead Pittsburgh over San Francisco. Robinson's homer, his 22nd, came in the first inning off losing pitcher Bob Knepper, 6-7, and followed a walk by Frank Taveras.

Candelaria, 13-4, allowed only two walks and no hits over the initial 4.3 innings before Alexander lined a single to center. Derrel Thomas scored the only San Francisco run in the eighth when he tripped and came home on a sacrifice fly by Rob Andrews.

Right-hander Phil Niekro hurled a six-hitter and struck out six batters to increase his National League-leading total to 191 as Atlanta won the opener from Montreal.

Tony Perez's three-run single highlighted a four-run fifth inning that sent Montreal past Atlanta in the nightcap. After Perez smashed his bases-loaded single, he later scored the fourth run of the inning on Del Unser's base hit.

Three Changes Produce 3-1 Victory

Wood Puts Sox In First

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ed Whittier Wood made three changes and put the Chicago White Sox in first place.

The knuckleballer changed his delivery, his pitching style and his losing ways Friday as he hurled the White Sox to a 3-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Friday. It was Wood's first victory since July 22.

He traced his recent problems to dropping his elbow and pitching hand as he delivered the ball. Now he is throwing straight over the top.

About the second change, he said, "I normally throw about 80 to 85 per cent knuckle balls, but I threw a few more fast balls than normal tonight because I've just been walking too many men.

"I struck out (Don) Money on a fast ball in the ninth inning. It may have caught him by surprise, although it was kind of a gamble. But he was the leadoff hitter and I just didn't want to walk him.

"If he hits a home run, so what? We still have a one-run lead. Maybe he'll hit a fast ball 400 feet for an out. The important thing was not to walk him," Wood said.

The victory boosted the White Sox into first place in the tight American League West race by two percentage points over Texas. The Kansas City Royals and Minnesota Twins are tied for second place, one-half game behind the White Sox and Rangers.

Richie Zisk and Oscar Gamble belted successive homers in the second inning to back Wood's five-hit pitching. The left-hander, who increased his record to 6-5, was hit hard only in the fifth inning when the Brewers scored their lone run.

In other AL games Friday, Baltimore edged Minnesota 4-2, Kansas City bombed Boston 8-1, New York clobbered Texas 8-1, Toronto defeated California 3-1, Cleveland nipped Oakland 2-1 and Detroit downed Seattle 6-4.

"My back only hurt twice all night," said Kansas City's George Brett, who returned to the lineup Friday after rested for four days because of his ailment. "It hurt when I stooped low to pick up ground balls. It hurt a little bit when I swung at low pitches."

Brett picked on a low pitch off Mike Paxton and drove it over the fence in the first inning. "Whatever pain I felt disappeared when the ball went out," Amos Otis and John Mayberry joined Brett in the Royal home run parade as the Red Sox' AL East lead narrowed to 2½ games over Baltimore and New York.

Otis hit a three-run blast in the sixth and Mayberry slammed a two-run shot.

Andres Mora slammed a two-run homer to back Mike Flanagan's pitching as Baltimore stopped Minnesota. Flanagan, 9-8, allowed the Twins just two hits over the final seven innings as he gained his first victory since July 24 and handed Minnesota its fifth one-run loss in a week.

Flanagan fanned six and walked two, facing just one batter over the minimum after the second inning. The 25-year-old Oriole left-hander, outdueling Twins ace Dave Goltz, who gave up just six hits but lost his first game in six weeks and dropped to 15-7.

Mike Torrez hurled a four-hitter and Reggie Jackson and Roy White powered home runs as New York captured its sixth straight victory. Torrez, who earned his sixth consecutive complete-game victory, increased his record to 14-10.

The Yankees scored five unearned runs off starter Roger Metcal, 2-1, capped by Jackson's two-run single.

Jackson slammed his 22nd homer in the seventh and White added his 12th homer in the ninth.

Jerry Garvin, with relief help from Pete Vukovich, snapped a 10-game losing string as the Blue Jays toppled California. The loss prevented Nolan Ryan from becoming the major league's first 18-game winner.

Winless since June 9, Garvin went the first 61.3 innings to increase his record to 8-13. Ryan, who struck out 13 Blue Jays to extend his major league record to 101 games with 10 or more strikeouts, is 17-11.

Cleveland right-hander Al Fitzmorris pitched a five-hitter before needing ninth-inning relief help as Cleveland handed Oakland its 17th loss in its last 18 games.

Fitzmorris, 5-7, gave up a run on three hits in the first inning and then allowed only a seventh-inning single by Mitchell Page and a leadoff single by Marty Perez in the ninth before being relieved. He retired 11 batters in a row over one stretch.

LEAD RAMS: South Haven will possess an explosive offense this season in an attempt to improve on last year's 8-1 record and qualify for the Class B state playoffs. Heading the South Haven offensive attack will be these three performers, running back Gus Thaler (32), quarterback Perry Palanca (10) and running back Shelby Gamble (42). (Staff photo)

Simon Sharing Lead!

BATTLE CREEK — Benton Harbor's Tex Simon is in a logjam for first place in the Michigan Open golf championship at the tournament's halfway point.

Simon posted a one-under-par 71 Friday here on the Bedford Valley Country Club course to tie six other players for the lead at 144 through 36 holes.

Buchanan's Bob Ackerman is just two strokes off the ace at 146, while Niles' Bob Meyer is well back at 151.

Among golfers deadlocked with Simon are Dan Pohl, a 23-year-old from Mount Pleasant who could become the first ever to win the Michigan Amateur and the Michigan Open in the same year.

Pohl, who turned pro after the recent Western Amateur at Point O' Woods, where he made the Sweet Sixteen, fired an even par 72 Friday.

Pohl missed a chance to lead all alone when he bogied the final two holes both days.

"I'm satisfied with my play," the former University of Arizona golf captain said afterward. "But when you bogey the last two holes, I figure I've thrown away four strokes right there."

Only two other golfers — Chuck Kocsis of Royal Oak and Lynn Janson of Conestock Park — have won both the Amateur and the Open. The feat never has been accomplished in the same year.

Kocsis, who hasn't played in the open in some time, has won the amateur six times and the open three times. Janson, who also was at 144 after the second round, won the amateur in 1968 and the open in 1974.

Others in the logjam with Pohl and Janson at 144 were 1968 open champion John Molenda of West Bloomfield; 1964 open titlist Thom Rossely of Belmont; Tom Deaton of Franklin, and Jack Seltzer of Ypsilanti.

All the leaders are pros.

The top amateur at the halfway point in the $15,000 tournament was Dearborn's Dave Zawacki, who carded a 146. Most of Friday's scores were higher than in the opening-round card because of gusty winds and the continuing deterioration of the fungus-damaged greens.

Explosive Offense Keys South Haven

SOUTH HAVEN — Watch for plenty of spectacular fireworks at South Haven this fall.

The Rams of coach Gary Steudle could be putting together one of the most explosive offensive units in South Haven history with the return of nine starters off last season's dynamite squad. Last year the Rams amassed almost 3,500 yards total offense (tops in the area) while scoring an average of 37 points a game (second best in the area).

Fanning hopes for an even more productive 1977 year is the return of three brilliant offensive performers — quarterback Perry Palanca, halfback Shelby Gamble and split end Mike Jones. All were all-Wolverine league picks a year ago.

Palanca (6-0, 175 pounds) has already broken most of the school's passing records since taking over at quarterback as a sophomore two years ago. Last year he threw 20 touchdowns passes, scored seven times himself and also tossed for 13 two-point conversions.

"He's just a real outstanding quarterback," noted Steudle. "He runs the triple option as well as any one I've seen. And he's just a real fine passer."

Jones was on the receiving end of 12 of those TD passes last fall. He ended with 25 receptions and a total of 84 points, fourth best (tie) in southwestern Michigan.

Gamble was a "sure bet" for the Rams last fall as a sophomore. The 6-4, 190-pound speedster rushed for 1310 yards, second tops in the area, and chalked up 11 touchdowns. He broke the Wolverine rushing record by over 300 yards.

Also back is "diveback" Gus Thaler, who accounted for 52 points last fall when the Rams went 8-1.

Returning starters on the huge offensive line are Jerry Canonic at end, John Watson (6-2, 250) and Jeff Lorren (6-4, 270) at tackles and Doug Braschler (6-3, 250) and John Schnoberger (5-9, 190) at guards. Roger Matthews (5-10, 185) and Dave Kinkaid (6-2, 200) are vying for the vacated center spot. The wide receiver competition is between Rick Foster and Vance Fennell.

"We piled up 3,500 yards last year with a new offense while making a lot of mistakes," offered Steudle. "So this year we'll just try to improve and try to increase that total. I think we have a good balance of passing and running."

The Rams, who return 23 lettermen, will be playing a new Notre Dame 4-4 defense this year.

South Haven returns six starters on defense. Set at ends are Russ Stein (6-2, 190) and Harold Shelton (6-9, 160). Kimball, Lorren, Watson and Braschler are fighting for tackle spots. In the picture at linebacker are Thaler, Schnoberger, Foster, Mark Andresen and Ron Young. Prospects in the secondary are Palanca, Jones, Canonic, Jerry Perry and Kenny Harris.

"We still have to prove ourselves this year...we can't sit on what we did last year," warned Steudle. "We have the potential but we have to keep improving every game."

The Rams appear the favorites for the Wolverine crown. South Haven will have a real toughie later in the season when it takes on Midland Div., the state Class A playoff champion of 1977.

Steudle's six-year record of 40-11-0 for a winning percentage of .784 is the best for area coaches.

Steudle likely will get some coaching assistance from Don Moorhead, former Ram passing star and quarterback for Michigan and in the Canadian Football League. Moorhead is student teaching this fall to pick up his teaching certificate.

Kemp Homers Give Rozema 14th Win

SEATTLE (AP) — After rapping only two hits in 28 at-bats off Marliner pitchers this season, Detroit leftfielder Steve Kemp figured the two home runs he socked in the Tigers' 8-4 baseball victory over Seattle Friday night were about due.

"It was my turn tonight," Kemp said after his 15th and 16th homers of the season drove in four runs. "Last time we came up from California where Frank Tanana and Nolan Ryan upset my timing. The fielders have been coming up and making the play."

Kemp's three-run homer in the first inning, off Seattle starter Dick Pole, 7-10, gave Detroit's rookie right-hander Dave Rozema, 14-4, a quick lead. Kemp's solo shot in the sixth helped the Tigers to a 4-2 lead after the Mariners were beginning to catch up.

Like Rozema a candidate for rookie of the year honors, Kemp says he "has moved back in the box a little bit. I have a lot of bat movement and I drop my hands."

Kemp said people told him as

Taylor Streaking In State Legion Tourney

Blissfield Walks, Runs Past SJ

By JOHN VANDEN HEED

Blissfield walked and then ran over St. Joseph Friday afternoon in the American Legion State Baseball Tournament at Riverview Park.

Blissfield batters took their time reaching first on 13 walks off Post 163 pitching, but they quickly picked up the pace with a perfect eight-for-eight in stolen bases while racing to a 6-1 victory.

Like in Thursday night's 4-2 loss to Midland, St. Joe had a hitting edge — eight to five — but the walks, plus a hit batsman and seven errors, spelled elimination for manager Mike Wyngarden's squad.

"We just had no defense," lamented Wyngarden. "Pitchers are the key to a defensive ball club, and when they are not doing the job you can't win.

"We just didn't do it between the foul lines. It's that simple. I said when the tournament started that if we played defense we would be in it right to the end."

While St. Joe was giving Blissfield plenty of scoring opportunities — it stranded 14 runners — winning Blissfield pitcher Rob Oetjens was making Post 163 work. He didn't allow a walk in the nine-inning game. And his teammates made just one error behind him while hiking their record to 38-8.

Friday's victory advanced undefeated Blissfield to today's 1:15 p.m. showdown against Taylor, another unbeaten. The winner of that one advances directly to Sunday's 1:15 championship clash against the survivor of today's 4:30 tilt.

Other action Friday in the double elimination event saw Midland ousted in a 4-3 loss to Taylor and a 13-5 setback at the hands of Troy-Birmingham.

St. Joseph trailed all the way against Blissfield, which got single runs in the fourth and fifth, added a pair in the sixth and finished up with single tallies in the eighth and ninth frame. The winners never got more than one hit an inning off starter and reliever Eric Wolf and Scott Dennison, but the walks and errors contributed by St. Joe easily made up for the lack of base hits.

"Walks killed them," agreed Blissfield manager Larry Tuttle. "And, fortunately, we were able to play good D."

Tuttle also noted that Blissfield played St. Joe three other times in the past two years and in two of those games Blissfield worked St. Joe pitchers for at least 10 walks.

Blissfield got hits and RBIs from Dave Pagel, Bud Friess and Ray Soff. Mike Burgermeister squeezed in another run and the sixth came across on a wild pitch.

Mark Ignatovich led St. Joe hitters with two singles, and Steve Ross knocked in the lone Post 163 tally in the seventh with a pinch single. Other St. Joe hits were by Pat Weber, Mike Collier, Kurt Felchner, Paul Knuth and Herb Ross. Weber and Ignatovich finished the tourney with three hits apiece to pace St. Joe, which bowed out with a 39-20 record and left Wyngarden standing with 199 victories with the Legion squad.

Soff, who played at Central Michigan University this past spring, was the top Blissfield hitter through Friday with three hits in four trips, including a triple, a double and three RBIs.

The distance effort by Oetjens, a reserve hurler who pitched just three innings through the district and zone tourneys, put Blissfield in great shape for the showdown. Nine of Tuttle's top three pitchers had been used going into today's action.

Blissfield is the "unofficial" defending state Legion champ — Garden City won a year ago but was booted out of the Nationals because it had been using an ineligible player.

Blissfield high school, also coached by Tuttle, has also won the state Class C crown the last two seasons. The two teams have a combined 130-25 mark (.852) over the past two years.

But Taylor probably wasn't an easy touch today. Taylor carried a 16-game winning streak into the game and an excellent overall 27-6 record.

Fastballer Tom Zwolan upped his record to 9-2 while turning back Midland Friday with an eight-hitter which included five strikeouts and just two walks. Jeff Stone, the last of three Midland pitchers, absorbed the loss. The second hurler, Roger Kruger, pitched well but had to step down because of a sore arm.

Taylor trilled 3-0 through two innings after making all four of its errors; but it battled back with the winning run in the eighth inning on a bases-loaded sacrifice fly by Terry Turner, who had fanned his first three times up.

First baseman Bob Zahari led the eight-hit Taylor attack with a three-hit effort which made him five for nine in the tourney. Rob Nelson had two hits, for Midland.

Midland then joined St. Joseph and Marquette on the sidelines after losing to Troy-Birmingham Friday night.

Troy got 13 hits, with Randy Moon having three singles. Midland's six hits included an RBI triple by Denny Ducham and a RBI double by John Shorts.

Troy got two runs in the first inning while chasing starting and losing pitcher Bob Lyon and never trailed. Scott Dear was the winning pitcher.

Midland bowed out at 31-7 while Troy took a 27-7 mark into today's 4:30 p.m. game.

MIKE MAKES IT: St. Joseph's Mike Collier slides safely into third base in third inning of American Legion State Baseball Tournament game Friday afternoon at Riverview Park. Collier singled and moved up on a single by teammate Kurt Felchner. Moving over to back up a possible throw is Blissfield pitcher Rob Oetjens (13). Blissfield won 6-1 and eliminated St. Joe from the tourney. (Staff photo by John Vanden Heede)

HARRISON, N.Y. — Longshot Jim Wiechers, playing so poorly he's considering leaving the tour, one-pulled 10 times on his way to a four-under-par 67 that lifted him into a seven-way tie for the second round lead Friday in the $300,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

He shared the top spot with Tom Weiskopf, Miller Barber, Leonard Thompson, Howard Twitty, Rod Curl and former Masters champion Charles Coody, all at 135 after two trips over the hilly, 6,603-yard Westchester Country Club course.

WHEELING, W. Va. — Debbie Austin, the surprise success story of the 1977 ladies pro golf tour, riddled Oglebay Park's Spedel course for a five-under-par 67 Friday and took a three-shot lead in the first round of the $50,000 Wheeling LPGA Classic.

Rolling in three birdie putts of 20 feet or more, Miss Austin overcame a potentially disastrous double bogey on the difficult 195-yard, par-three 11th hole in shooting the third best round in the four-year history of the Wheeling tournament.

GLENHEAGES, Scotland — Lee Trevino birdied the 18th hole to seize a half with Britain's Brian Barnes and insure the United States a semifinal berth in the Double Diamond World Golf Classic.

The victory gave the U.S. the championship in its group. Scotland was second.

TENNIS

TORONTO — Unseeded Colin Dibley of Australia upset top-seeded Raul Ramirez of Mexico 6-1, 4-6, 6-3 in the third round of the men's singles at the $100,000 Canadian Open tennis championships.

Dibley, whose serve has been clocked at 148 miles per hour, had Ramirez on the run throughout the match.

In women's action South Africa's Marise Kruger blasted forehands past Jeanne Faveri to win 6-3, 6-1 and Australian Cynthia Doerner could not hold an early lead and fell to Regina Mursikova of Czechoslovakia 1-6, 6-0, 6-3.

TRACK AND FIELD

SOFIA, Bulgaria — Leonid Moisseev of the Soviet Union pulled away from Italy's Franco Fava in a furious sprint down the stretch to win the 10,000 meters at the World University Games.

Moisseev went into the lead on the final bend and edged ahead. There was less than a second between them at the finish line. The Russian won in 29 minutes 12.0 seconds, with Fava second in 29:12.7. Ilie Florin of Romania won the bronze medal in 29:13.4.

BOB UECKER

Uecker Still 'Star' On Monday Night Baseball

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bob Uecker, the best thing about last season's version of "Monday Night Baseball," is also the best thing about this season's revised edition.

ABC's ratings for the Monday night games are up slightly this year and Uecker, the former Milwaukee Braves catcher with the fuzzy hair and quick wit, is one of the prime reasons.

Uecker teamed with Bob Prince and Warner Wolfe last year on ABC's first string unit. This year, with Prince having been placed on waivers and Wolfe dropped to third string as part of a general shakeup, Uecker lines up alongside Keith Jackson and the ubiquitous Howard Cosell.

"I got along well with Wolfe and Prince," he says. "Maybe the chemistry wasn't right, I don't know. I just tried to do my job. I don't think my job has changed that much this year. I enjoy working with Howard and Keith. No problem."

Uecker started out last season as a baseball version of Don Meredith. He was supposed to be funny. He was funny and still is, but he has also become an excellent play-by-play man and analyst. He tells you what shortstop has slowed down a step and is cheating toward the hole, or what a pitcher should throw in a given situation, or why a batter is slumping.

"I've had people ask me if I can really tell the difference between a slider and a fastball," he says. "I tell them, 'Hell, yes.' I was a catcher for a lot of years and I know pitchers. I like to call the pitch, what I think a guy will throw next. I think the fans get a kick out of that.

"If there's a time to be funny, I can be funny. But if you've got a good ball game going, who the hell wants to hear someone making jokes?"

Uecker's last year in the majors was 1967 but he began preparing for a broadcast career long before that. "I spent enough time in the bullpen practicing play-by-play. I would be calling a game and the other guys would be laughing. We had a lot of fun in the bullpen."

Uecker currently does the play-by-play on the Milwaukee

Brewer games in addition to his Monday night chores. "The only time I was really scared doing a game in Milwaukee was soon after I started and Merle Harmon and Tom Collins walked out of the booth and left me alone on radio. I didn't know what to do so I talked and talked. I was even talking about the paper on the floor, everything."

ABC has had a good run of close ballgames this season and that makes everyone's job easier. "When you get a 9-0 ballgame, that's when you really have to do some broadcasting," says Uecker. "You talk about other ball clubs, things that happened in the past, tell jokes, whatever."

Uecker says he has never been a ballplayer, although he doesn't hesitate to point out mistakes. He says he hasn't gotten any flak from players and he doesn't care if he gets any from writers.

"I don't ever worry about writers ripping me," he says. "Of course you like to have guys write nice things about you, but it doesn't really bother me if they don't. I got ripped and booed a lot more when I played."

Where does Uecker go from here? Would he like to branch out and maybe turn up on "Wide World of Sports" covering, say, barrel jumping from Lake Placid, N.Y.?

"I would like to be inside the barrel, get a good shot of the guy going over, you know?" he says. "Maybe talk to a guy who's just tried to jump 16 barrels and made only 13 of them."

Pitt Defends Title With Aerial Game

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
Can the Pitt Panthers do it again?

Helsman Trophy-winner Tony Dorsett, college football's all-time rushing king, is gone. Nose guard Al Romano, runnerup in the Outland Trophy voting, is gone. Coach of the Year Johnny Majors is gone.

Gone but not forgotten. Their legacy was the 1976 national championship, capping an incredible four-year run to riches saga.

Pitt will defend The Associated Press National Championship Trophy with a souped-up aerial attack featuring quarterback Matt Cavanaugh and wide receiver Gordon Jones, rebuilt lines led by offensive guard Tom Brzoza and defensive tackle Runtzy Holloway and a standard secondary which led the nation in interceptions last season and returns intact — Bob Jury, Jeff Delaney, J.C. Wilson and Lefty Felder.

Pioneering the sidelines where Majors once roamed will be Jackie Sherrill, the No. 1 assistant for the first three years of Majors' reign, who was lured back after one season as head coach at Washington State when Tennessee made Majors an offer he couldn't refuse.

"I think that with the people we have coming back, with the young people on our team and with the incoming freshmen, the 1977 squad has the potential for a good nucleus," says Sherrill. "We have to find some linebackers and ends and replace some fine people on both lines."

"Our strong points are at the skill positions — running back, defensive backfield, quarterback and receivers. Offensively, we'll throw the ball more."

The tip-off on Pitt, just as last year, will come in the opener against highly rated Notre Dame.

The Panthers' No. 1 challenger for Eastern honors likely will be Penn State, which had things pretty much its own way in this part of the country until Majors, Dorsett & Co. came along. The Nittany Lions have had 38 consecutive seasons without dropping under .500, an NCAA record.

The last 11 of them were under Coach Joe Paterno, who boasts a magnificent 101-23-1 mark. However, last year's record was a 9-5-5 — the most losses since Paterno's initial campaign — and included a 20-9 Gator Bowl loss to

Notre Dame which wasn't really that close.

Paterno sees more problems ahead. The Lions open with Rutgers, which boasts the nation's longest unbeaten streak, and then come Houston, Maryland and Kentucky, all Top Twenty hopefuls. In addition, Paterno calls his current squad "the most over-rated team I've ever been around."

That's the bad news. The good news is that Paterno is optimistic.

"I'm concerned because we have to play so well so early," he says. "So many of our people haven't had any real experience. We're talking about playing sophomores at a lot of positions. In the long run I'm optimistic because we have some fine young players. It should be a team that gets better each week."

The major chore is rebuilding an offensive line that lost both tackles and both guards. On the plus side, Penn State has nearly all its skill-position players returning, including quarterback Chuck Fusina, running backs Steve Gelsie, Matt Suhey, Bob Torrey and Mike Guman, flanker Jimmy Cefalin and tight end Mickey Shuler.

The situation is stable on defense with nine starters returning, although Paterno is switching from his old reliable 4-4 to a 5-3 alignment. "We could have a good defensive team," he says. "We should have speed and we are bigger than we were last year."

If Rutgers wins its opener from Penn State, the Scarlet Knights will emerge as a dis-

Caulkins Swim Standout

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (AP) — Tracy Caulkins is becoming the United States' latest swimming sensation, at the tender age of 14.

The Nashville, Tenn., youngster set her second American record in two days Friday night in the National AAU Swimming Championships at the Mission Viejo International Swim Complex.

Miss Caulkins swam the fourth-fastest women's 400-meter individual medley ever, 4:48.93, in breaking the American mark of 4:51.74 she set earlier this year.

Miss Caulkins set a United States record in the women's 100-meter breaststroke Thursday night with a time of 1:13.05.

For her efforts, she has been selected to the USA team that will compete against East Germany Aug. 27-28 and the Soviet Union Sept. 3-4. She will swim both events in the dual meets.

linet threat to Pitt's Eastern championship. They went 11-0 a year ago, the only major college team besides Pitt to post a perfect slate, and Coach Frank Burns has 13 starters back.

The defense led the nation in four categories last year and should be strong again, led by nose guard Rich Wagner, tackle Dan Gray and linebacker Jim Hughes.

Boston College is always tough, but the Eagles open on the road against Texas and Tennessee and their fourth-game opponent is none other than Pitt. Coach Joe Yukie will rely on a defense headed by tackles Fred Snerlas and Chuck Morris and linebackers Rich Scudellari and Kelly Ellis.

Elsewhere among the independents, Colgate hopes to duplicate last year's 8-2 mark. Syracuse will sink or swim with quarterback Bill Hurley and an improved defense. Army will go as far as quarterback Leamon Hall and tight end Clennie Brundage can take it. Navy will try to carry over the momentum of a three-game winning streak after a near-upset of Notre Dame and improving West Virginia boasts a solid passing combination in quarterback Dan Kendra and wide receiver Steve Lewis.

That leaves Villanova, which finished 5-0-1 after a 1-4 start and returns six starters off a record-setting offensive unit. Holy Cross, which returns 17 starters and will be composed mostly of sophomores and freshmen, and Temple, coming off its first losing campaign since 1968.

In the Ivy League, Yale, which shared the 1976 crown with Brown, is a solid choice this time around. The Elis don't appear to have a serious weakness. Their main strength is running back John Pagliaro, 1976 Player of the Year in New England and the Ivy League.

Brown could challenge again, provided a replacement is found for quarterback Paul Michalko and record-setting wide receiver Bob Farnham. An impressive defensive line, led by tackle Gregg Robinson, makes Dartmouth tough, as usual. Harvard will depend on a solid defensive front led by tackle Charlie Kaye and end Bob Baggott, until an inexperienced offensive unit learns Coach Joe Restie's wide-open Mufflet attack.

Penn. Princeton, Columbia and Cornell should be improved. Whether the improvement is enough to challenge for the first division is doubtful. The big news at Cornell is the return to the Ivy League of Coach Bob Blackman, longtime head man at Dartmouth where he won more games and more titles than any other Ivy League coach.

CLASS C CHAMPS: Ray's Uptown of Edwardsburg captured the Class C slow pitch softball district championship over the weekend in Buchanan. Ray's, now 32-19, will compete in the state tournament over the Labor Day weekend in Portage. The team

Steinfort Added To Lions' Kicking Parade

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The parade of placekickers continued at the Detroit Lions training camp as the team got set for its Sunday exhibition game here with the Cincinnati Bengals.

One of the latest moves saw the Lions obtain placekicker Fred Steinfort from the Seattle Seahawks Friday in a trade for future considerations, the National Football League club said.

Steinfort was a fifth-round draft pick of the Oakland Raiders in 1976. He led the Raiders in scoring during the 1976 preseason with 31 points and appeared in seven games during the regular season before an injury forced him out.

Oakland placed him on waivers last week and he was picked up by Seattle.

Steinfort is a left-footed, soccer-style kicker. He attended Boston College, where he set the school's career scoring mark of 215 points.

Additionally, the Lions placed kicker David Prosey on waivers. Prosey was picked up on waivers last week from the San Francisco 49ers.

He was handed his release Friday without ever having placekicked for the Lions under game conditions.

The Lions, desperate to get more yardage into their attack, said Steinfort will have to battle for the place kicking duties Sunday. Both Steinfort and Prosey are soccer style kickers while Wood is a more conventional type.

Lions coach Tommy Hudspeth said he plans to use rookies to replace his No. 1 linebacker, Charlie Weaver, if the veteran doesn't rejoin the team in time for Sunday's game against Cincinnati.

Weaver was absent from the Lions training camp for the third day Friday in a dispute which Lions officials say apparently stems from his contract desires. He is playing out his option this year and would be able to negotiate on his own next season.

Hudspeth is taking a 1-1 record into the pre-season clash.

Much of the interest in the Sunday game will center on Archie Griffin of Ohio State, two-time winner of the Heisman trophy. The Bengals were 10-4 last season and just missed getting into the NFL playoffs. They are counting on Griffin to get them in this year, his second as a pro.

He was named to start against the Lions at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Uecker Still 'Star' On Monday Night Baseball

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bob Uecker, the best thing about last season's version of "Monday Night Baseball," is also the best thing about this season's revised edition.

ABC's ratings for the Monday night games are up slightly this year and Uecker, the former Milwaukee Braves catcher with the fuzzy hair and quick wit, is one of the prime reasons.

Uecker teamed with Bob Prince and Warner Wolfe last year on ABC's first string unit. This year, with Prince having been placed on waivers and Wolfe dropped to third string as part of a general shakeup, Uecker lines up alongside Keith Jackson and the ubiquitous Howard Cosell.

"I got along well with Wolfe and Prince," he says. "Maybe the chemistry wasn't right, I don't know. I just tried to do my job. I don't think my job has changed that much this year. I enjoy working with Howard and Keith. No problem."

Uecker started out last season as a baseball version of Don Meredith. He was supposed to be funny. He was funny and still is, but he has also become an excellent play-by-play man and analyst. He tells you what's going on and is cheating toward the hole, or what a pitcher should throw in a given situation, or why a batter is slumping.

He knows his stuff.

"I've had people ask me if I can really tell the difference between a slider and a fastball," he says. "I tell them, 'Hell, yes.' I was a catcher for a lot of years and I know pitchers. I like to call the pitch, what I think a guy will throw next. I think the fans get a kick out of that.

"If there's a time to be funny, I can be funny. But if you've got a good ball game going, who the hell wants to hear someone making jokes?"

Uecker's last year in the majors was 1967 but he began preparing for a broadcast career long before that. "I spent enough time in the bullpen practicing play-by-play. I would be calling a game and the other guys would be laughing. We had a lot of fun in the bullpen."

Uecker currently does the play-by-play on the Milwaukee

Brewer games in addition to his Monday night chores. "The only time I was really scared doing a game in Milwaukee was soon after I started and Merle Harmon and Tom Collins walked out of the booth and left me alone on radio. I didn't know what to do so I talked and talked. I was even talking about the paper on the floor, everything."

ABC has had a good run of close ballgames this season and that makes everyone's job easier. "When you get a 9-0 ballgame, that's when you really have to do some broadcasting," says Uecker. "You talk about other ball clubs, things that happened in the past, tell jokes, whatever."

Uecker says he has never been a ballplayer, although he doesn't hesitate to point out mistakes. He says he hasn't gotten any flak from players and he doesn't care if he gets any from writers.

"I don't ever worry about writers ripping me," he says. "Of course you like to have guys write nice things about you, but it doesn't really bother me if they don't. I got ripped and booed a lot more when I played."

Where does Uecker go from here? Would he like to branch out and maybe turn up on "Wide World of Sports" covering, say, barrel jumping from Lake Placid, N.Y.?

"I would like to be inside the barrel, get a good shot of the guy going over, you know?" he says. "Maybe talk to a guy who's just tried to jump 16 barrels and made only 13 of them."

Pitt Defends Title With Aerial Game

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
Can the Pitt Panthers do it again?

Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett, college football's all-time rushing king, is gone. Nose guard Al Romano, runnerup in the Outland Trophy voting, is gone. Coach of the Year Johnny Majors is gone.

Gone but not forgotten. Their legacy was the 1976 national championship, capping an incredible four-year run of riches.

Pitt will defend The Associated Press National Championship Trophy with a stacked-up aerial attack featuring quarterback Matt Cavanaugh and wide receiver Gordon Jones, rebuilt lines led by offensive guard Tom Brzozka and defensive tackle Randy Holloway and a standout secondary which led the nation in interceptions last season and returns intact — Bob Jury, Jeff Delaney, J.C. Wilson and Larry Felder.

Pitting the sidelines where Majors once roamed will be Jackie Sherrill, the No. 1 assistant for the first three years of Majors' reign, who was lured back after one season as head coach at Washington State when Tennessee made Majors an offer he couldn't refuse.

"I think that with the people we have coming back, with the young people on our team and with the incoming freshmen, the 1977 squad has the potential for a good nucleus," says Sherrill. "We have to find some linebackers and ends and replace some fine people on both lines."

"Our strong points are in the skill positions — running back, defensive backfield, quarterback and receivers. Offensively, we'll throw the ball more."

The tip-off on Pitt, just as last year, will come in the opener against highly rated Notre Dame.

The Panthers' No. 1 challenger for Eastern honors likely will be Penn State, which had things pretty much its own way in this part of the country until Majors, Dorsett & Co. came along. The Nittany Lions have had 33 consecutive seasons without dropping under .500, an NCAA record.

The last 11 of them were under Coach Joe Paterno, who boasts a magnificent 101-23-1 mark. However, last year's record was a 5-6-5 — the most losses since Paterno's initial campaign — and included a 20-9 Gator Bowl loss to

Notre Dame which wasn't really that close.

Paterno sees more problems ahead. The Lions open with Rutgers, which boasts the nation's longest unbeaten streak, and then come Houston, Maryland and Kentucky, all Top Twenty hopefuls. In addition, Paterno calls his current squad "the most over-rated team I've ever been around."

That's the bad news. The good news is that Paterno is optimistic.

"I'm concerned because we have to play so well so early," he says. "So many of our people haven't had any real experience. We're talking about playing sophomores at a lot of positions. In the long run I'm optimistic because we have some fine young players. It should be a team that gets better each week."

The major chore is rebuilding an offensive line that lost both tackles and both guards. On the plus side, Penn State has nearly all its skill-position players returning, including quarterback Chuck Fusina, running backs Steve Gulse, Matt Suhey, Bob Torrey and Mike Gunnin, flanker Jimmy Cefalo and tight end Mickey Shuler.

The situation is stable on defense with nine starters returning, although Paterno is switching from his old reliable 4-4 to a 5-3 alignment. "We could have a good defensive team," he says. "We should have speed and we are bigger than we were last year."

If Rutgers wins its opener from Penn State, the Scarlet Knights will emerge as a dis-

Caulkins Swim Standout

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (AP) — Tracy Caulkins is becoming the United States' latest swimming sensation, at the tender age of 14.

The Nashville, Tenn., youngster set her second American record in two days Friday night in the National AAU Swimming Championships at the Mission Viejo International Swim Complex.

Miss Caulkins swam the fourth-fastest women's 400-meter individual medley ever, 4:18.84, in breaking the American mark of 4:31.74 she set earlier this year.

Miss Caulkins set a United States record in the women's 100-meter breaststroke Thursday night with a time of 1:13.05. For her efforts, she has been selected to the USA team that will compete against East Germany Aug. 27-28 and the Soviet Union Sept. 3-4. She will swim both events in the dual meets.

threat to Pitt's Eastern championship. They went 11-4 a year ago, the only major college team besides Pitt to post a perfect slate, and Coach Frank Burns has 13 starters back.

The defense led the nation in four categories last year and should be strong again, led by nose guard Rich Wagner, tackle Dan Gray and linebacker Jim Hughes.

Boston College is always tough, but the Eagles open on the road against Texas and Tennessee and their fourth-game opponent is none other than Pitt. Coach Joe Yukica will rely on a defense headed by tackles Fred Smerlas and Chuck Morris and linebackers Rich Scudellari and Kelly Elias.

Elsewhere among the independents, Colgate hopes to duplicate last year's 8-2 mark. Syracuse will sink or swim with quarterback Bill Hurley and an improved defense. Army will go as far as quarterback Leamon Hall and tight end Glennie Brundage can take it. Navy will try to carry over the momentum of a three-game winning streak after a near-upset of Notre Dame and improving West Virginia boasts a solid passing combination in quarterback Dan Kendra and wide receiver Steve Lewis.

That leaves Villanova, which finished 5-4-1 after a 1-4 start and returns six starters off a record-setting offensive unit. Holy Cross, which returns 17 starters and will be composed mostly of sophomores and freshmen, and Temple, coming off its first losing campaign since 1969.

In the Ivy League, Yale, which shared the 1976 crown with Brown, is a solid choice this time around. The Elis don't appear to have a serious weakness. Their main strength is running back John Paplano, 1976 Player of the Year in New England and the Ivy League.

Brown could challenge again, provided a replacement is found for quarterback Paul Michalko and record-setting wide receiver Bub Farnham. An impressive defensive line, led by tackle Gregg Robinson, makes Dartmouth tough, as usual. Harvard will depend on a solid defensive front led by tackle Charlie Kaye and end Bob Baggott until an inexperienced offensive unit learns Coach Joe Restie's wideopen Multiflex attack.

Penn. Princeton, Columbia and Cornell should be improved. Whether the improvement is enough to challenge for the first division is doubtful. The big news at Cornell is the return to the Ivy League of Coach Bob Blackburn, longtime head man at Dartmouth where he won more games and more titles than any other Ivy League coach.

Steinfort Added To Lions' Kicking Parade

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The parade of placekickers continued at the Detroit Lions training camp as the team got set for its Sunday exhibition game here with the Cincinnati Bengals.

One of the latest moves saw the Lions obtain placekicker Fred Steinfort from the Seattle Seahawks Friday in a trade for future considerations, the National Football League club said.

Steinfort was a fifth-round draft pick of the Oakland Raiders in 1976. He led the Raiders in scoring during the 1976 preseason with 31 points and appeared in seven games during the regular season before an injury forced him out.

Oakland placed him on waivers; last week he was picked up by Seattle.

Steinfort is a left-footed, soccer-style kicker. He attended Boston College, where he set the school's career scoring mark of 215 points.

Additionally, the Lions placed kicker David Posey on waivers. Posey was picked up on waivers last week from the San Francisco 49ers.

He was handed his release Friday without ever having placekicked for the Lions under game conditions.

The Lions, desperate to get more yardage into their attack, said Steinfort will have to battle lan Santer and Bobby Wood for the place kicking duties Sunday. Both Steinfort and Santer are soccer style kickers while Wood is a more conventional type.

Lions coach Tommy Hudspeth said he plans to use rookies to replace his No. 1 linebacker, Charlie Weaver, if the veteran doesn't rejoin the team in time for Sunday's game against Cincinnati.

Weaver was absent from the Lions training camp for the third day Friday in a dispute which Lions officials say apparently stems from his contract desires. He is playing out his option this year and would be able to negotiate on his own next season.

Hudspeth is taking a 1-1 record into the pre-season clash. Much of the interest in the Sunday game will center on Archie Griffin of Ohio State, two-time winner of the Heisman trophy. The Bengals were 11-4 last season and just missed getting into the NFL playoffs. They are counting on Griffin to get them in this year, his second as a pro.

He was named to start against the Lions at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Stockman Sponsors Labor Bill

This district's Congressman Dave Stockman has co-sponsored legislation designed to "restore and reassert those employee rights which have been trampled in the struggle between management and big labor."

The bill, the Employees Bill of Rights Act of 1977 (H.R. 8289), would amend the original National Labor Relations Act.

"This bill is not labor's bill nor is it business's bill," Stockman explained. "It is not designed to increase the power of either side. Its purpose is to protect the rights of the individual worker."

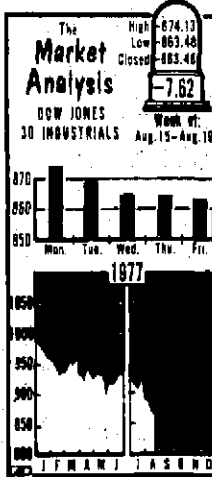

"Times have changed," the St. Joseph Republican said. "When the NLRA and the Labor-Management Relations Act were passed, unions were not as strong and it was felt that the workers needed protection. Yet over the past 20 years, organized labor has grown to the point where it is imposing as many if not more restrictions on the worker than management did years ago. Too often the worker feels caught in the middle, with labor booming as large as management."

Stockman said that incorporated in the Employee Bill of Rights Act is a protection of the employee's right to exercise full freedom of choice; the employee's right to secret ballot elections for union representation and the right to a secret ballot in the election, maintaining or resumption of a strike.

"The bill also protects employees from mandatory union contributions for political purposes and it would protect the rights of those employees whose religious beliefs prohibit them from participating in union activities," Stockman continued.

"Over the past 20 years, almost all labor legislation has been formulated with organized labor in mind," Stockman concluded.

"The Employee Bill of Rights swings the pendulum back to the individual worker who should be the beneficiary of all labor-management legislation."

Hollander Injured In Auto Crash

FENNIVILLE — Antonio Arredondo, 35, of Holland, was listed in poor condition today at Holland City hospital with injuries sustained last night in a one-car accident just south of here.

Allegan county sheriff's deputies said Arredondo apparently lost control of his car as he crossed railroad tracks across 57th street near 122nd avenue. Deputies said the auto left the road, struck a tree and went through a ditch before coming to rest back on the road. He was alone in the car.

He was taken to Douglas Community hospital and later transferred to the Holland hospital following the 8:30 p.m. accident.

Benton Harbor Can't Halt 'Moonies' Fund Solicitation

BY JIM SHANAHAN
City Editor

Benton Harbor City Manager Melvin Farmer said Moonies, representing the Unification Church based in San Francisco were soliciting money in the city Friday. Farmer advised the city can't stop a church from soliciting on public property. The city can stop such solicitation on private property if the owner complains, Farmer said.

The U.S. Labor party also plans to solicit in Benton Harbor but agreed to wait until city officials are shown court decisions purportedly upholding the party's right to solicit, Farmer said. A city permit is required for door-to-door selling, Farmer said.

The Unification Church headed by Rev. Sun Myung Moon has been accused of "mind kidnapping" of young converts. The church has been in illegal battles with parents attempting to get refunds of their sons' and daughters' "deprogrammed."

Legislature May Slate Special Budget Session

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State lawmakers may have to interrupt their summer vacations and return to Lansing to act on a $97.5 million budget bill under a back-to-work order from their leaders.

A special one- or two-day session may be called to free up money to help convert Kinchee Air Force Base into a prison, despite the budget director's contention he doesn't really need it.

Senate Majority Leader William Faust has sent telegrams to his 33 Democratic colleagues, calling a special session for Aug. 30. Lawmakers left in early July for vacation and aren't due back until Sept. 14.

But Republican senators and House members have not been notified of the special session yet. Faust said Friday he will meet soon with House Speaker Bobby Crim to discuss the matter.

If the session is definitely set, he said, members will get another notice when to report for duty.

The bill, containing $51.8 in state general fund money, includes $1.7 million to begin converting part of Kinchee into a prison. It also includes $2.6 million to continue Detroit freeway patrols, and money to fund dozens of other state departments and agencies until the end of the fiscal year Sept. 30.

The budget bill was left dangling at the end of the session last month. It requires two-thirds votes in "immediate effect" in both the Senate and House if the money is going to be used before next spring.

The state administrative board earlier this week blocked release of the Kinchee money. Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said it may be unconstitutional to spend the money before the legislature officially appropriates it.

But some of the money has already been spent to pay some state workers' salaries, to buy a parking lot in Grand Rapids and to begin work converting Kinchee.

Gerald Miller, director of the Department of Management and Budget, said he is not sure why lawmakers would return. The state does not need the budget money until after they return in September, he said.

"There was a perception it (the administrative board's action) would slow things down," Miller said. "It wouldn't. We can't obligate the money until the third week in September."

POLICE ROUNDUP

Arrest Follows Curve-Road Chase

Benton township police said a high-speed chase along a curvy stretch of Red Arrow highway, leading into Benton Heights, ended Friday night in a parking lot where a van truck was driven through a concrete partition between two businesses.

Patrolmen Dale Koen and Michael Krugh said they arrested Robert G. Adams, 30, of 1171 McIntosh, Benton Heights, who was booked on a charge of driving under the influence of intoxicants.

Koen and Krugh said they were on patrol about 10:40 p.m. when they saw a van eastbound on Red Arrow at high speed. The officers said the van reached speeds of 70 miles per hour. The officers said they followed the van to a lot where it was parked, with the lights out. As the patrol car approached, the van was driven through the partition between the Saddle grill and Spot tavern. The officers said they stopped the van before it returned to the road. No injuries were reported.

In St. Joseph Friday afternoon, Ronald Lewis, 359 Cherry street, Coloma, told police his wallet containing $170 in cash was stolen from a desk top at Z

Pan Smokes

Benton Harbor firemen at 5:25 a.m. today, cleared smoke from the home of Betty Jordan, 687 East Main street. Firemen said the smoke was caused by an overheated pan of food on a lighted stove. A minor blaze burned itself out before firemen arrived, it was reported.

anyway. We wouldn't be spending it."

While budget officials would have liked the money last month, he said, it's too late now to make much difference.

"The difference between Aug. 30 and Sept. 14 is not a big issue," he said. "We can manage on the Kinchee situation."

Faust also said he would meet with key lawmakers next week to see if another thorny issue — who should patrol Detroit freeways in the next fiscal year — can be resolved during the brief session. If it can, that would clear the way for passage of the State Police budget bill, which also failed to reach the governor's desk before the legislature adjourned.

DETROIT (AP) — National Bank of Detroit on Friday announced an increase in its loan interest rate to prime customers from 6½ to 7 per cent, starting Monday.

Hagar May Hire Firm To Collect Ambulance Bills

Hagar township officials are considering hiring a collection agency to try and collect nearly $5,000 from people who have used, but not paid for, the ambulance over the last 2½ years.

John Bergstedt, township board trustee and chairman of the township's ambulance and fire committee, said "The problem simply is users of the ambulance service don't pay their bills, but they still want the service" provided by members of the Hagar township fire department.

Bergstedt said delinquent ambulance fees in the township totaled $1,589 in 1975; $1,881 in 1976; and through July of this year, $1,505.

Edward Broderick, township supervisor, said a meeting has been scheduled for Monday with a St. Joseph collection agency.

The minimum charge for ambulance calls is $50, Broderick said. The township has budgeted $30,000 for operation of the fire department which includes the ambulance service.

Broderick said the township has collected between $1,500 and $1,800 per year in ambulance call fees. Ambulance fees are put back into the fire and ambulance department budget.

Bergstedt said the board at this time does not plan to drop the township ambulance service, but the board would like to see delinquent bills reduced so that the service can break even financially.

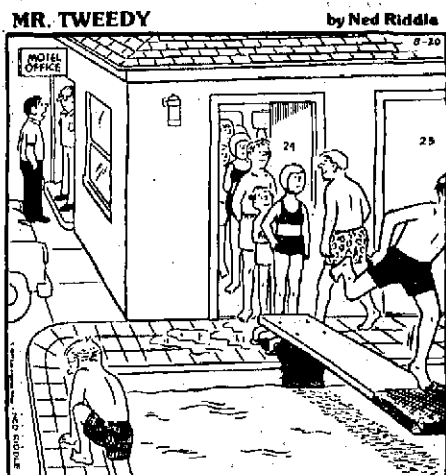

Bainbridge Moves Meeting Up One Week

The Bainbridge township board's regular scheduled September meeting will be held one week earlier on Monday, Aug. 20, according to Mrs. Beverly Koroch, township clerk.

The township board normally meets the first Monday of every month, but that day will fall on Labor Day, a legal holiday, so the meeting date was changed.

Adventist School Signup Is Aug. 23

Registration for students who will attend E.B. Garrett Seventh-day Adventist elementary school will be held Aug. 23 at the school from 6 to 8 p.m. The school is located at 140 Seneca drive, Fairplain, and serves children in grades 1 through 8. Principal Bruce Anderson announced classes will begin Aug. 29 with a full program, including art, music, physical education, and Bible classes. The school employs four full-time and three part-time teachers. Anderson said enrollment has averaged about 80 students per year for the past five years, but space is available this year for several more children. Parents seeking more information are asked to contact Anderson at the school.

"COULD YOU GIVE ME A DIFFERENT ROOM? NUMBER 24 ISN'T WORKING OUT TOO WELL."

White House Hails Price News

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House spokesman says figures showing a moderate rise in consumer prices in July are good news, but have limited meaning in the long-term battle with inflation.

The Labor Department said Friday that overall consumer prices rose by four-tenths of 1 per cent in July. Grocery prices, dropped by one-tenth of 1 per cent, the first decline since November.

THE KEANE BROTHERS: KIDS WITH THEIR OWN TV SHOW

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR ROBERTA PETERS, Metropolitan Opera star
What did you say to Mrs. Mondale and Ruth Carter Stapleton when you met them in Washington? — S.B., Caldwell, Idaho

● Since Joan Mondale and I have kids of the same age, we spoke about them — plus the pros and cons of college. When I met the President's sister, going up in an elevator, we broke the ice by singing — or perhaps it was harmonizing — "You Are My Sunshine."

FOR FRANK GIFFORD, ABC-TV sportscaster
Do you believe in giving teenagers a weekly allowance? — C.H., Johnson City, Tenn.

● Yes and no. I run a loose ship and believe in adjustment and negotiation. Before my son Kyle went to college, his allowance was partly salary — it included caring for the pool and garden. My daughter Vicki never wanted a set amount. Every few weeks she'd outline her needs and plans. We'd pay for her school lunches and extras, such as birthday gifts for friends. Any time they needed cash for things not run-of-the-mill, we'd sit down and discuss it.

FOR THOMAS TRYON, author of Crowned Heads
Were you an actor before becoming a writer? — M.D., Logan, W. Va.

● Yes. After a Navy stint in World War II, I studied at New York's Art Students League and worked as a painter at the Cape Playhouse on Cape Cod. I made my stage debut as a spear carrier in Caesar and Cleopatra. My Broadway debut came in Wish You Were Here, and I started in films in 1955. In fact, my acting career is longer than my writing one (which began in 1971). But I'll stick to novels.

FOR KAREN GRASSLE, star of Little House on the Prairie
What do you hate most about acting? — M.P.R., Keyesport, Ill.

● Sitting under the dryer every morning at 6:50, getting my hair set for the show. You have no idea how much I detest that ritual. I can't bear the feeling of heat on my head and tight curlers pulling my scalp. I feel suffocated by the tight net. I also hate having to get up at 5:00 to undergo that torture. I'd do and give anything not to have to go through that routine every day.

FOR CHERYL TIEGS, cover girl and model
Are you naturally thin, or do you have to work at it? — C.H., Provo, Utah

● I have to work at it every day. Six years ago I found myself gaining weight and got up to 150 lbs. (I'm 5' 10"). I gradually lost it and am now down to 120. Every day it's a challenge — if I relax one day, then the next is all diet. I'm very conscious of what I eat and how much. It's never easy to lose weight. You must put yourself in the right state of mind and be determined to make yourself the best you can be.

FOR FORREST TUCKER, starring in the movie, Walking Tall
Are you scared of death? — M.H., Santa Fe, N.M.

● The word "death" has a sound of finality to it, with which I don't agree. I prefer to call it "the next step of the journey." I don't know where that journey will take us, but leaving this world is merely one of a series of stages. When we take our last breath, it's not the end; it's the start of something new. So, in answer to your question, no, I'm not scared. Not one bit.

FOR MEL TILLIS, songwriter and singer
Is your stutter for real or part of your act? — G.K., Portland, Ore.

● It's for real. I caught malaria at 3, and it affected my speech. Some said the problem would go away, but it didn't, and as a youngster I became very sensitive and introverted. Then, in the late 50's, I decided the stammer was something I could live with and realized it's much better to face the problem head-on. Now it pays off as comic relief in my act.

FOR MICHELLE PHILLIPS, star of the movie Valentino
I bet you're always asked silly questions. What's the silliest question you've asked someone else? — O.M., Mason, Mich.

● When I met Henry Kissinger in Hollywood a couple of years ago, he said, "When you come to Washington, give me a call and I'll show you the city." I was so taken aback at the invitation that I didn't know what to say, so I said, "But I don't know where to reach you. Where's your office?" He stared at me and said, "Just call the White House and ask for Henry Kissinger."

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR
If I see Farrah Fawcett-Majors on another magazine cover, poster or T-shirt, I'll scream. Is there anyone who is not impressed with her? — G.B., Ossabrock, N.D.

● Spoony Singh, owner of the Hollywood Wax Museum. He knows from experience that today's VIP is often forgotten. So he's waiting before including Farrah. Last time he cashed in on an overnight success, the actor was getting 20,000 letters a week. The moment his show was dropped, the mail collapsed, too. Singh melted down the mannequin for a more enduring personality and made candles with what was left over.

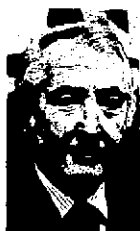

FOR THOMAS BERTRAM LANCE, director, Office of Management and Budget
How do you rate yourself as a speaker? — N.L., Wheaton, Md.

● I'll answer that by telling you one of my favorite stories. A deer hunter took his nagging wife on a trip. He left her alone to try her luck. Shots rang out and back rushed the hunter to the scene. There was his wife engaged in an argument with a cowboy. "O.K., O.K.," sighed the cowboy. "Give me back the saddle and you can keep the horse." I'm as good an orator as she was a hunter.

PRO AND CON

Should Innocent Victims of Crime Receive Federal Aid?

PRO Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr. (D.-N.J.)

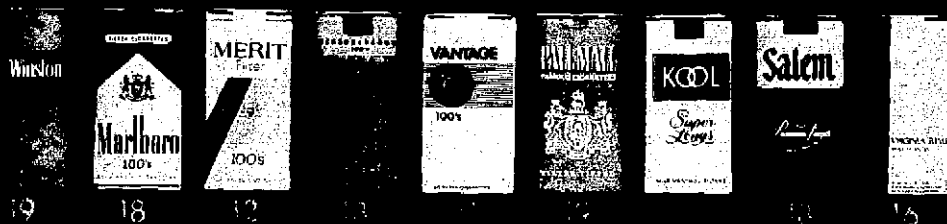

There is a higher cost to crime than the expense of police, courts and prisons: the cost of human suffering. Of the thousands of people injured by criminal acts each year, the majority are poor, and many are elderly and sick. We have an obligation to assist them to recover from their injuries and financial losses. Twenty states now have programs to compensate crime victims for unreimbursed medical costs and other expenses, but the Federal Government needs to help present state programs expand and to encourage other states to begin such programs. The Government spends thousands of dollars toward the detention and rehabilitation of convicted criminals. It's time we show some consideration for their victims.

CON Rep. Charles E. Wiggins (R.-Calif.)

Before launching another enormously expensive welfare program, we must ask whether compensating victims of state crimes is truly a Federal responsibility. The state enforces its own criminal laws; Washington doesn't, nor can any other state. Therefore, if compensation is due, a state should compensate its own crime victims without shifting the burden to those not sharing its law-enforcement powers. To do so is to require the taxpayers in Idaho to pick up the tab for street crimes in New York. The public is already paying vast sums to provide medical and rehabilitative care to needy crime victims and nonvictims alike. The charge that victims are neglected is simply false.

A FRESH LOOK AT THE WILD KINGDOM

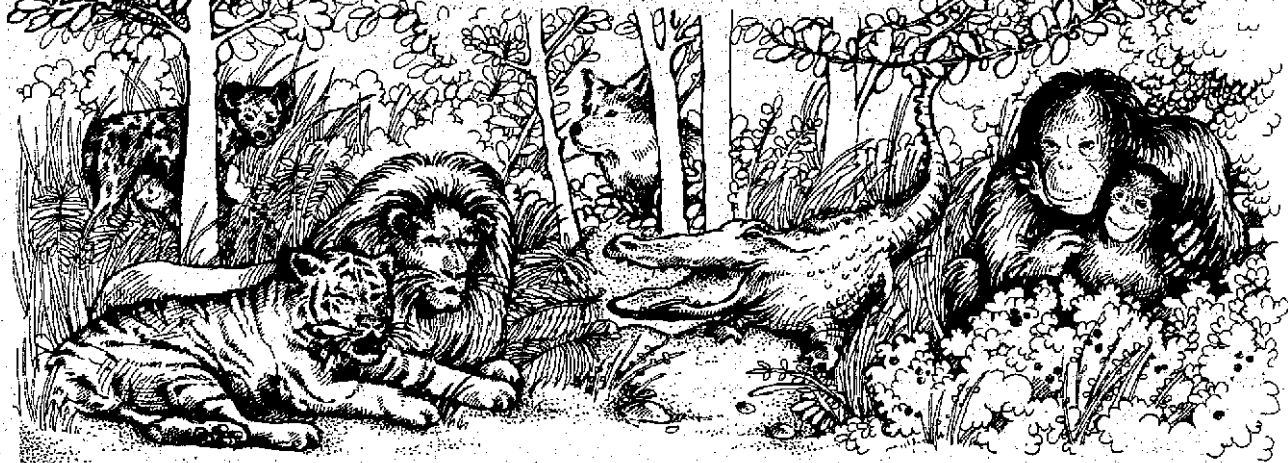

Illustration by Debbie Young

By Boyce Rensberger

Over the centuries, man has developed many colorful myths about wild animals. We have classified them as good or bad, heroes or villains. We have given them definite personalities, believing that lions are noble, wolves are rapacious, hyenas are cowardly. More recently, environmentalists have tended to label all wild animals as inherently good, and man as a spoiler of the wilderness.

Fortunately, the facts about animal behavior are at least as entertaining as the fantasies to which we have clung. Here's what painstaking, scientific observations have revealed about some of the most misunderstood beasts.

LIONS — Far from being the noble beasts depicted in royal emblems or the lovable creatures popularized in the "Born Free" books and movies, lions are one of the most misunderstood of animals. Although centuries of fable and folklore stand behind the images most people have of lions, recent studies of how these beasts live in the wild demolish almost every belief.

We now know, for example, that lions are not primarily predators, or beasts of prey. They prefer to scavenge, and in many parts of Africa lions get more than half their food by stealing the kills of hyenas and wild dogs.

When food is scarce, the adult lions take it, often leaving their cubs to starve. At least half of all lion cub deaths are caused either by starvation while adults eat, or parental abandonment.

Female lions do more than 90 percent of the hunting and slaying of prey. Then the magnificently maned males rush in first to gobble most of the kill. The males do little for the lion pride, which is chiefly a matriarchal unit, except sire litters and chase off rival males.

Fables and fairy tales aside, can it be that lions aren't noble, hyenas aren't cowards and animals don't kill just for food and in self-defense?

An old myth about lions is that, unlike man, they do not kill except for food or in self-defense. In fact, lions sometimes go on killing binges, catching and killing dozens of animals that they never eat.

Recent studies also show that lions and many other species murder their own kind far more often than do human beings. In fact, if one calculates the murder rate observed during a three-year study of about 200 lions in Tanzania's Serengeti National Park, it works out to be about 2,000 times higher than the murder rate in the United States, which is among the highest in the world. Even if World War II fatalities are averaged into the world rate for those years, mankind is still far more peaceable than are lions. Similar high murder rates have been found for wolves, cougars, hyenas, black bears, monkeys, gulls and several other species.

HYENAS — Unlike the lion, the hyena has now been found to be primarily a predator rather than a scavenger. The confusion of these two animals' reputations must rank as one of the great wildlife misunderstandings of all time. Far from being slinking cowards, hyenas are highly skilled hunters capable of bringing down zebras, antelopes and even the massive African buffalo.

Among the more remarkable features of hyena life are the different hunting techniques used for each prey species. Biologists have found that the hyena clan actually meets before a hunt and decides, for example, that it will be zebra tonight. The hyenas then set off in search of zebras, ignoring convenient prey of other species along the way.

WOLVES — Thanks to stories from Little Red Riding Hood to Jack London's novels, the wolf has been known as one of the most bloodthirsty and rapacious beasts ever to face a human being. In fact, there is no documented instance of a nonrabid, free-living wolf attacking a human being, much less killing one.

Face to face with a person, wolves will run away. Even if cornered, wolves put their tails between their legs, bend their heads and whimper like beaten dogs.

Wolf packs, far from being howling mobs, are small, tightly knit families led by a dominant pair that are usually the parents of the other members. Wolves typically mate for life. Unlike lions, which leave their young to feed on their own, wolves disgorge predigested meat for their pups whenever the little ones signal for it. When a mother wolf goes on a hunt, another adult will baby-sit for the pups.

GORILLAS — Despite their image as ferocious monsters bent on wreaking havoc wherever they go, gorillas are by far the most gentle and shy of the apes. Their loud, chest-beating behavior is a ritual designed to scare intruders, and if it doesn't work, the gorilla runs away.

Notwithstanding all the King Kongs nimbly scaling skyscrapers, gorillas are poor climbers and sometimes fall out of trees. They spend most of their time on the ground, in little family bands, munching wild celery and bamboo shoots, and only go into trees at night in order to make a crude nest to sleep in safety.

Their sexuality, despite some 60 commercial fiction films released over the last 70 years that depict them carrying off fair damsels, is remarkably low. Male gorillas typically mate only about once a year, and the female initiates the contact.

CROCODILES — Although these cold-blooded, scaly beasts that crawl on their bellies and lurk in low places have long been a symbol of evil — probably inspiring the myth of the dragon that can be slain only by a virtuous knight — they are surprisingly intelligent, family-minded creatures.

Mother crocs guard their eggs in a buried nest for three months, never leaving, even to eat. When the hatchlings begin peeping, mother croc digs them out, gathers them in her mouth and tenderly carries them to the water. She and the father closely guard them for several months until they can fend for themselves.

Crocodiles have also been found to hunt prey cooperatively, sometimes on land where they can run as fast as a man, and to share their food.

As man's population growth continues to demand that more land be converted from wilderness into farmland, the reasons for conserving wildlife come under increasing challenge, especially in the poor countries where most of the wildlife remains and where human needs are at least as legitimate as our wish to protect animals.

If we wish to believe myths about animals, then there is little point in arguing that they be protected. The real animals might as well vanish while we cling to our storybook animals.

Only if we are prepared to accept wild animals for what they are does it make sense to work for their conservation. Part of a mature appreciation of wildlife should be a desire to understand each species as it truly is.

PELE

This incomparable athlete is almost single-handedly responsible for the recent soccer explosion in the United States.

By Geoffrey Bocca

The world's most popular sport has suddenly caught on in the United States, where attendance at North American Soccer League games is surging. (New York's Cosmos recently played the Tampa Bay Rowdies before more than 62,000 fans.) In addition, soccer is growing faster than any other NCAA team sport (60 percent of the colleges have teams), and there are now 830,000 soccer programs for players under 19.

Why has soccer suddenly exploded, suddenly become an "in," chic sport in most areas of the country? Well, it has few injuries, both boys and girls can play, and the action is fast and continuous, so overly zealous parents can't interfere, and all 11 players on each side get to touch the ball.

Much of the credit, however, must go to one Edson Arantes do Nascimento, better known as Pelé, a 37-year-old forward with the Cosmos who is the greatest player in the history of the game.

He was born to an impoverished family in the small town of Três Corações (Three Hearts) in Brazil. At age 3 he was kicking, barefoot, a knotted bundle of rags, and at 16 he led his country to the first of three World Cup championships.

His fame zoomed. Back in 1958 word passed throughout the soccer world of a Brazilian prodigy, a boy with soccer talents almost beyond human capability. Today, in his 22nd and final professional season, he remains matchless.

Wide World

Other sports invite comparisons: would Joe Louis in his prime have beaten Muhammed Ali? Was Koufax better than Seaver? But in soccer, Pelé is supreme. Let us take just one example. Outside of Brazil, the greatest number of goals scored by a player in one season is 60 by Dixie Dean of Everton, England, back in 1928. In 1959 Pelé scored 127. In other seasons he has scored 110, 101, 87, 76, and his lifetime total is nearly 1,300 — double or triple that with his assists, those flicks and passes through a maze of opponents to a teammate waiting to plant it in the back of the net. To approximate such an achievement in baseball, a player would have to close a 20-year career with a lifetime average of .750. Last year he was voted the NASL's Most Valuable Player in a runaway.

After 1958 Pelé was the hottest soccer property in the world, an obvious target for the big-money teams of Italy and Spain. Alarmed, the Brazilian Government proclaimed Pelé a national treasure, not to be bought, sold or exported. He became a millionaire through endorsements and sound investments, but he has never allowed the acclaim to go to his head. He remains deeply religious and a good family man, taking an active interest in youth soccer.

A genius, by definition, must possess something that is beyond the human norm. When Nijinsky, the world's greatest ballet dancer was X-rayed, it was found that certain bones around his ankles were not like other men's; they resembled more the bones of a bird. The most noteworthy feature of Pelé are his strange, haunting, bulging eyes. Many believe they give him a wider arc of vision than normal men, that he can, in effect, almost see behind him.

His catlike grace and intellectual cunning permit him the most extraordinary liberties. As if the ball were tied to his foot, he can switch from standstill to a sprint and back to a standstill without the ball ever leaving his instep. (A soccer ball is always kicked with the instep, never the toe.)

Pelé even uses the legs of his opponents the way a pool player uses the cushion. Ordinary players sometimes kick a ball against an opponent's legs so that it rebounds out of play. With Pelé, however, the maneuver is sheer magic. I have seen him put an English on the ball so that it spun like a top from the leg of one opponent to be deflected off the leg of a second opponent and slither between the legs of a third, leaving Pelé to streak past all three and score. I have seen him stroke the ball forward a good distance, feint with his shoulders so that three defenders scattered in the wrong directions, and then dart through, having beaten three opponents without touching the ball.

He often has been hacked, tripped, kicked and injured. For example, in the 1966 World Cup, a player sent him flying with a lethal trip, then kicked him again in mid-air. But Pelé never loses his cool or his sense of sportsmanship.

Next year is World Cup year again, to be played in Argentina. For the first time since 1958, Pelé will not be there to give the competition grace and glory. The World Cup will never be the same again.

NAMATH

By JOE NAMATH

There's an impression that I signed with the Rams to enhance my possibilities for a career in Hollywood.

I thought about retiring after last season...

At Alabama coach Bear Bryant and his staff had a strong influence on me.

I do nothing now I'm ashamed of.

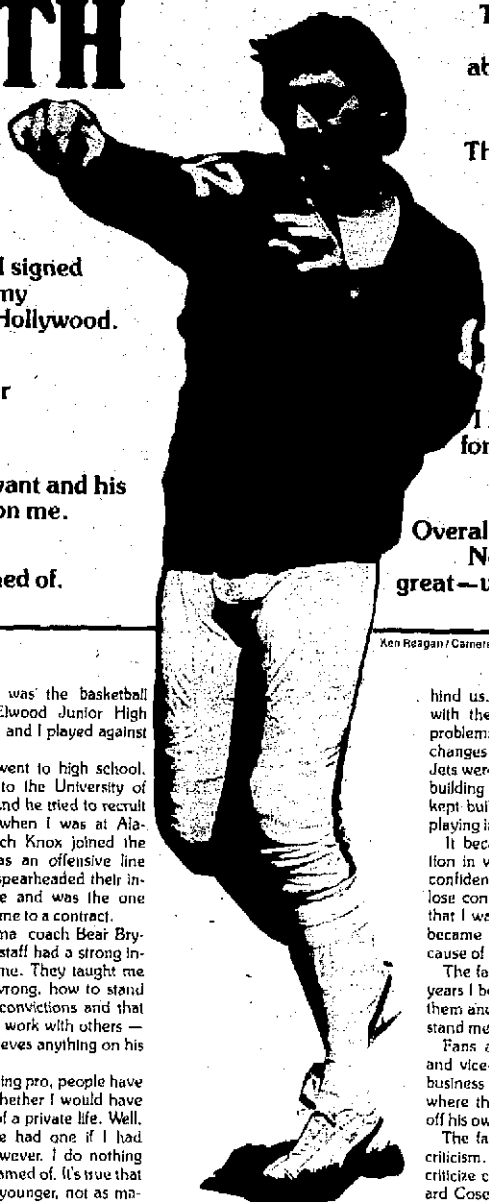

This is the last time I'll talk about last year.

The fans taught me to accept criticism.

I feel good about this season...

I left New York for two reasons.

Overall, my years in New York were great—until last year.

Ken Regan / Camera 5

A youngster at my boys' camp in Dudley, Mass., recently asked me whether I thought I owed football anything. My first instinct was to say no, that I had worked hard and that you deserve what you earn.

But after thinking it over, I knew that football has been responsible for most everything that has happened to me in my adult life, and I've made many friendships with people I expect to associate with after my playing days. I don't know when that will be: I guess it will be a year-to-year situation.

So the answer is yes. From the day I left home in Beaver Falls, Pa., for the University of Alabama, through 12 years of many highs and some lows in New York with the Jets, to now as a member of the Los Angeles Rams, everything I've accomplished and the rewards I've had have been because of football.

It gave me the opportunity to attend college. In those days, I preferred baseball, and for a while I missed baseball after giving it up because it conflicted with spring football practice.

I liked basketball, too, and, oddly, it was through it that I met Chuck Knox, head coach of the Rams. He was the basketball coach at Elwood Junior High back home, and I played against his teams.

When I went to high school, he moved to the University of Kentucky, and he tried to recruit me. Then when I was at Alabama, Coach Knox joined the Jets' staff as an offensive line coach. He spearheaded their interest in me and was the one who signed me to a contract.

At Alabama coach Bear Bryant and his staff had a strong influence on me. They taught me right from wrong, how to stand behind my convictions and that you have to work with others—nobody achieves anything on his own.

Since turning pro, people have asked me whether I would have liked more of a private life. Well, I could have had one if I had wanted. However, I do nothing now I'm ashamed of. It's true that when I was younger, not as mature, I did some things I later regretted.

Also, some things did upset me, such as differences with the media. I remember, for example, a newspaper picture showing me with a paper cup in my hand. The caption implied I had been drinking early in the day. It was untrue.

But I've gotten over those kinds of things and accept that a professional athlete is in the public eye. Sometimes those things happen innocently; other times they are done by people merely to create controversy.

Overall, however, my years in New York were great—until last year.

This is the last time I'll talk about last year because it's behind us, and as bad as it was, with the defeats, the coaching problems and the personnel changes, I benefited from it. The Jets were (and are) in a major rebuilding process, and the chaos kept building. It had been great playing in New York until then.

It became a frustrating situation in which a man could lose confidence in himself and a team lost confidence in itself. I know that I was tested by it and that I became a stronger person because of it.

The fans were great. Over the years I believe that I got to know them and that they got to understand me.

Fans are important to sports and vice-versa. Pro football is a business for guys like me, but it's where the fan can get his mind off his own problems.

The fans taught me to accept criticism. A lot of people who criticize can't take it. Take Howard Cosell, for example. Once I criticized him, and he almost broke a blood vessel. "How could Namath say that about me?" he complained.

Now I'm going from one group of fans to another. But fans are the same everywhere. They've become pretty intelligent critics. At times they don't understand what we're doing on the field—why a play succeeded or failed—but that's part of the game, too.

There's an impression that I signed with the Rams to enhance my possibilities for a career in Hollywood. Someday I'd like to get into acting, but I'm not in Los Angeles necessarily for that reason. I've had the opportunity to get into the entertainment industry but haven't pursued it at this stage because I haven't had the time. In short, I'm in Los Angeles primarily to play football.

I have a one-year contract, and the Rams and I are both happy with it. We'll see how I feel physically and how this season goes before considering next year.

I thought about retiring after last season mainly because my left leg still aches. It's a bit of tendonitis around the knee. I was examined earlier this summer, and the doctors said I can play. I've played with pain for a long time and have learned how to put it out of my mind. I'm a positive thinker.

I'll wear a brace on my left knee like the one I wear on my right knee. It'll help keep the knee from rotating incorrectly and thus irritating a tendon. But I never like to stress my injuries.

I left New York for two reasons: I didn't want to get lost in the Jets' rebuilding program, and the winters there weren't helping my leg problem. The Los Angeles climate is more desirable, but I also want to play with a contender and to have one more chance at a championship. I look at the Rams' personnel—people like Harold Jackson, Ron Jessie, Lawrence McCutcheon, John Cappelletti, the terrific offensive line and a defense which is one of the best in the business—and it excites me to work with such a solid group.

I've gotten as ready as I can. To take weight off my legs, I'm the lightest I've ever been (188—my playing weight was 202). I went on a simple diet: I cut out junk food and salt.

As a quarterback I have a new system to learn. I began working out in April in Alabama, and I wasn't sure where I'd be playing then, or if at all. Then in June, I moved to my boys' camp where my days were full of anticipation for the season—work with the kids in the morning, then a workout in the weight room. I ran and threw long hours in the afternoons, and in the evenings, I relaxed, fishing for bass on Webster Lake, studying the Rams' playbook.

I have a good feeling about this season because I like feeling stronger than the other team. Isn't that part of what life's all about?

AMERICA'S BEST HOPE FOR THE MILE

A college junior has come from nowhere to make a serious run at the world record.

Steve Scott, our No. 1 miler.

By Ed Burg

When track stars meet for the World Cup games next week in Düsseldorf, West Germany, a 21-year-old American named Steve Scott will be there. Scott is America's top miler, but he is so new to the international track scene that he had never even run a sub-four minute mile before this year.

Now he's collecting praise from all corners. Marty Liquori, a pretty fair miler himself, calls Scott "this country's brightest hope in the mile." Olympian Frank Shorter says Scott "will probably be the first American under 3:50." And Scott's coach, Len Miller, believes the American record (3:51.1) is "within his reach this year."

Scott, a junior at the University of California-Irvine, has a strong build (6'0", 185 lbs.), which is topped off with floppy blond hair. His best time for the mile is 3:55.1, tops for an active American, and his 3:37.3 in the 1500 (the "metric mile") is also the nation's best mark.

In the past there was always a great American miler — men like Glenn Cunningham, Jim Ryun or Liquori. But today the world's best come from New Zealand (John Walker), Kenya (Wilson Waigwa) or Tanzania (Filbert Bayi). College track coaches have even begun to look overseas for champion milers. So Scott's domestic competition is Waigwa, who runs for the University of Texas-El Paso; Niall O'Shaughnessy, Arkansas' best, who grew up in Ireland and Mike Bolt at Stanford, who, like Waigwa, calls Kenya home. When recently asked what the major obstacle facing Americans in the mile was, Scott replied with one word: "Kenya!"

Giving foreign athletes scholarships that might otherwise be used for Americans is a growing point of controversy, but Scott sees the bright side. "I'm going against the best in the world at college meets," he says. "And if I beat them, I know I've beaten someone who's good."

Why the shortage of great American milers? "People in other countries are subsidized by their governments," Scott explains. "When a guy here gets out of college, there's no way he can support himself or a family and continue running seriously. So most of them quit at 23 or 24, and their peak ages aren't until 26 or 27." At 21, Scott's best years are yet to come.

Five years ago, track was the furthest thing from Scott's mind. As a high school junior, he was a disgruntled baseball pitcher. Enter Bob Loney, a math teacher who doubles as the track coach. When Scott turned out for cross country, Loney recognized his outstanding track potential. After a little coaxing, Scott threw down his glove and put on track spikes.

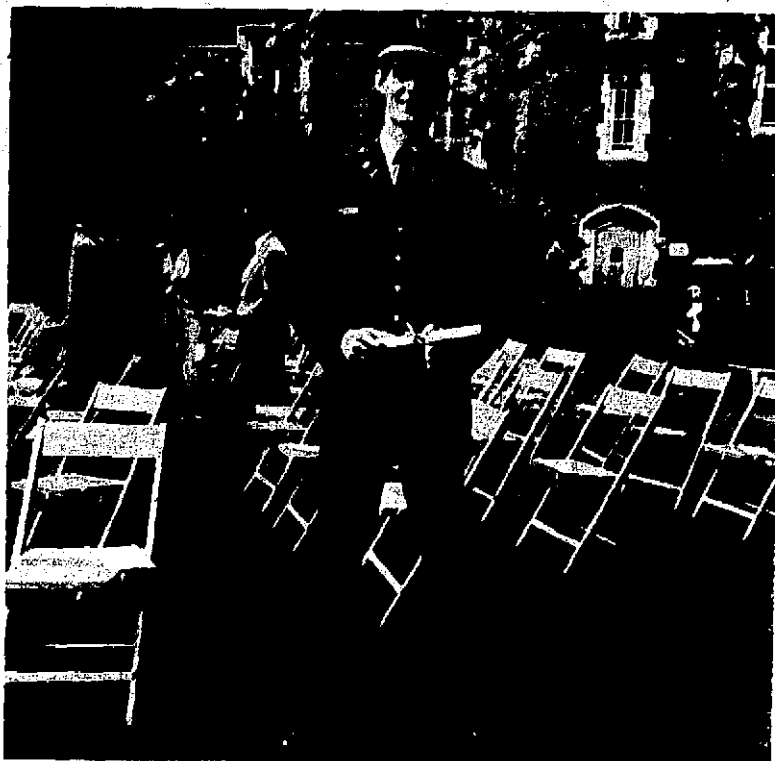

Choosing UC-Irvine wasn't difficult for Scott. "Coach Miller was different," he says. "He seemed to care." Miller's leadership has paid off for Scott, who defeated world record holder Walker at the San Diego Indoor Games last February and later nipped Bayi, the 1500 record holder, at a meet in Jamaica. In June he defeated Waigwa at the AAU meet.

The rise has been fast for Scott, who hasn't really had time to comprehend it all. "When they replay my races on TV," he says, "it seems like I'm watching somebody else. 'Who is that guy?' I'll say to myself."

That guy is now America's top miler, and he'll be at the prestigious World Cup Games as America's sole competitor in the 1500. So although he's a newcomer to big-time track, it's a good bet that Americans will soon be familiar with Steve Scott. Regardless of the outcome at Düsseldorf, he has already shown one thing: the great American miler has returned.

Give our country a college education.

As an Army ROTC graduate, you bring more than training and gold bars to your new job in the active Army, Army National Guard or the Army Reserve.

You also bring a college education which makes you one of our country's most valuable assets. Why? One reason is the wealth of experiences and ideas you bring with you. This enables the Army to better relate to an ever-changing society.

And since you'll be an Army officer, you'll have plenty of opportunities to put your ideas to work. In fact, you'll be running your own show, right out of college.

Another reason we value your education so highly is that the people you'll be leading are better educated and more highly motivated than ever before. This makes your job as an Army officer more of a challenge.

To help you meet this challenge when you get out of school, we'll help you while you're in by giving you a living allowance of up to $1,000 each year you are enrolled in Advanced ROTC.

There are also opportunities for scholarships that cover tuition, books and lab fees.

That way, you can make the most of your education. And when you graduate, our country can make the most of it too.

NEW CINDERELLA OF TENNIS

Eyes riveted on the ball and set to pound it.

ment, Diane exclaimed, "How can anyone so young be so good?" Other veteran pros who have lost to the prodigy from Rolling Hills, Calif., have grumbled, "How can we hold our heads up after losing to a kid who's still in eighth grade?"

Tracy may play tennis like an adult, but off the court she remains a typical 14-year-old. "When I play, it's usually against older people," she says, "but all my friends are my age, and I don't feel any different from them." She giggles a lot and has the same passion for hamburgers, rock music and magic shows that her friends have. At one sports banquet, a magician put on an act in which he seemed to drop an orange onto a table and then to scoop it up underneath. Tracy organized her friends into following him from table to table. "We've got to sneak behind this guy and see if he's got secret holes in the tables," she said. Like other 14-year-olds, she can be moved easily to tears. After one important tournament victory, newsmen treated her like an adult and fired questions at her. The interrogation was too sharp, and she began to cry. Her older sister took her outside so she could regain her composure. "When I came back, they apologized so much for upsetting me that I cried again," Tracy recalls.

Although she is looking forward to when she can turn pro and win big purses, Tracy plays tennis primarily because it's fun. "If it wasn't a fun game, I wouldn't be playing it," she says. Tracy comes from a tennis-mad family. Her father, a physicist, plays tennis and so do her mother, sister and three brothers. The Austins have won more than 400 tournaments.

One secret of her success is that she started early. Her father recalls that he used to toss tennis balls at her when she was still in diapers. "We have pictures of her hitting at 2, and she showed remarkable form."

Tracy's parents insist, however, that they never pushed her into tennis and that she developed her own enthusiasm for it. In any event, her picture made the cover of World Tennis magazine when she was 5, and she was soon beating both girls and boys years older than herself. Her mother works afternoons in

At Wimbledon, giant-killer Tracy beat Vessies Appel of Holland before bowing to Evert.

There are four good reasons to see your good neighbor agent.

When Don and Vicki Cooper of Roseburg, Oregon, bought insurance for their home from State Farm agent Ken Clark, one thing led to another.

"I liked the coverages and felt good about being with State Farm," says Don. "But most of all, I liked the way he treated Vicki and me. We could tell he had our interests at heart."

Later, the Coopers decided to make Ken their life insurance agent. And then, their auto agent, too.

"It's a great convenience to have one agent handling the family insurance," says Vicki.

"If anything should happen, it's nice to know that all I have to remember is one name."

"And when you call him, you get a fast response," adds Don. "You know he's there, and you know he's working for you."

Ken says, "Knowing that families like the Coopers are well taken care of is very satisfying."

It's the most rewarding part of my job. There's a State Farm agent like Ken Clark in your neighborhood.

the pro shop at the Jack Kramer Tennis Club, and Tracy began playing there after school. She took lessons from coach Robert Lansdorp, who was impressed by her intensity and self-confidence. "She believes she has the capacity to become the best in the world, and she quickly made a believer out of me," he says.

She began to play tournaments in California almost every weekend and won everything in sight. She moved into the adult world when she played in a number of Virginia Slims tournaments and won headlines when she came close to beating Rosemary Casals, the country's 4th-ranking woman player. She then duplicated Billie Jean King's achievement by walloping Bobby Riggs in an exhibition match. Observers said Riggs was more embarrassed at losing to the "kid" than he was when Billie Jean licked him.

Tracy has been keeping up her school work even while practicing every day and going to tournaments. "I like school," she says, "though not as much as tennis." She doesn't like to miss school to compete on the courts because "that would set me apart from the other girls." And, surprisingly, all the attention she has received hasn't turned her head. "She enjoys it, but she shrugs it off," says her father. "She's not a one-dimensional youngster, fortunately. When she's with her peers, she behaves just like them. She's not different from any of them — except when it comes to playing tennis."

THE MOST UNDERRATED FISH

Drawing by Tom Cavanagh

The bluegill, a scrappy fighter, thrives in the rivers, streams and lakes of most every state.

By Fred Nozlinger

No freshwater fish offers more pure joy to the fisherman than the bluegill, a superbly abundant fish found over a vast range. It also is catchable by numerous fishing methods, is a diminutive demon on the hook and becomes an utter delight in a skillet.

All anglers, regardless of age or experience, can catch the bluegill. It is the fish most youngsters learn on because it is the fish most likely to inhabit the waters fished by them.

No other freshwater fish exceeds the gill in ounce-for-ounce fighting ability, which means the skill and desire of a young angler are quickly honed. The angler may, with experience and age, concentrate on the bass, trout, walleye or any of several other species. But as he pursues fishing — one of the top participatory sports in the nation — he will probably drift back from time to time to bluegill waters.

Lepomis macrochirus is its generic name. In the South, the bluegill is called a bream or brim and is as respected as hominy grits. It was once found only in the Great Lakes, the south Atlantic states and the Mississippi Valley, but clamor for the fish by anglers who had been introduced to bluegill fishing resulted in successful transplants that placed it throughout the country and in some southern Canadian areas.

A true democrat, the bluegill thrives in streams, rivers, lakes, ponds and borrow pits. It is a school fish, so when you catch one it is wise to anchor as there will be others nearby.

Fred Nofziger, a free-lancer specializing in outdoor articles, has been a freshwater fisherman all his life.

A member of the many-specified sunfish family, the bluegill's color depends on the condition of the water in which it swims. Usually, it is handsome, with a dark, olive-colored back that has a purple shine and iridescent transverse green bars. Its cheeks are marked with blue, its gill cover is jet black, its belly is either bright copper or pure scarlet. It is distinguished from other members of its family by a black ear flap and a black spot on the end of its dorsal fin.

Bluegills are prolific breeders, and the male is as diligent a parent as he is a wooer at spawning time. After mating, the bull prepares the spawning nest by fanning a depression two feet in diameter and six inches deep with its tail.

The male also stays with the young, guarding them against predators until they are strong enough to face their watery world alone. And the fathers do their jobs well; male bluegills have been seen holding off a bass twice their size and will even attack boated feet.

The 'gill's size is generally in the one-quarter to one-pound range, although two pounders are not uncommon. It will sample just about anything that is not large enough to bite back, but it is particularly fond of worms and crickets, though grasshoppers, minnows, crawfish, hellgrammites, small lures and flies catch their share of bluegills. The angler should use No. 8 or 10 hooks, no more than a four-pound test monofilament line and a light spinning or casting rod.

The bluegill likes cover — sunken brush piles, weed beds (but not weed-choked waters), a canopy of lily pads and deep holes around stumps, sunken logs, docks and bridges.

The 'gill becomes active when the water temperature hits 67 degrees and is most active when the water is 70 to 75 degrees. It is found in deep water during the heat of the day and moves into shallow water as the temperature drops.

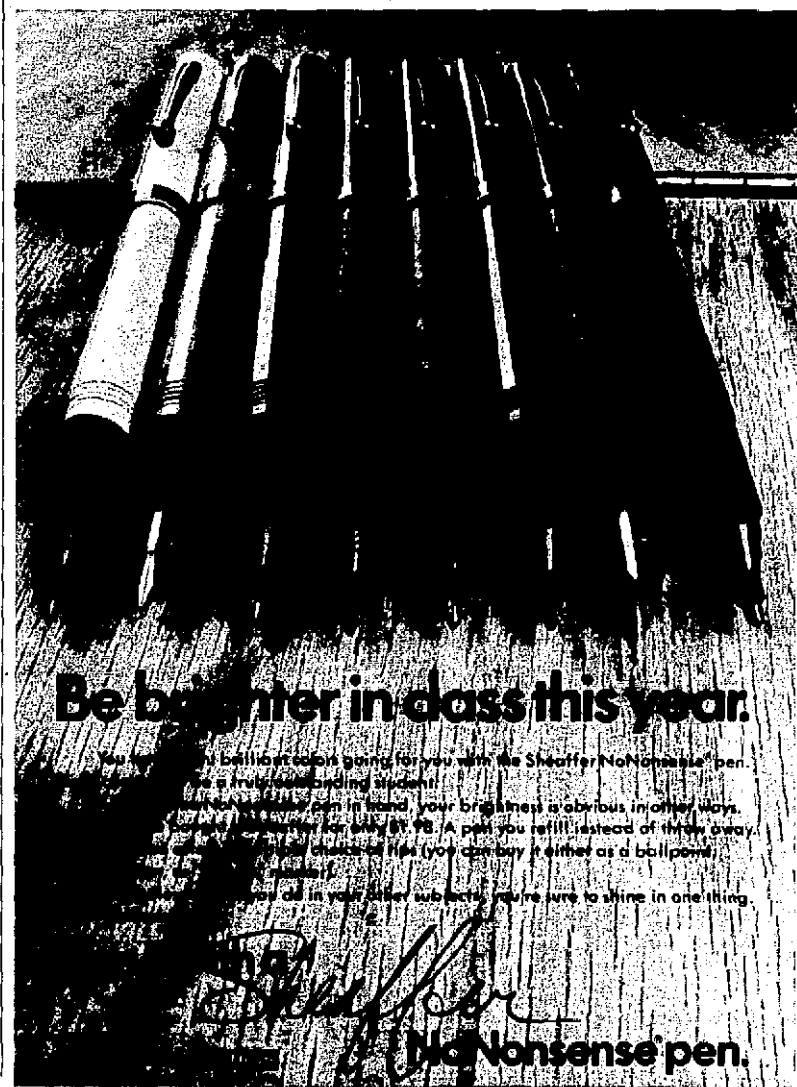

The late Carl Allen, for many years a conservation officer in northern Michigan, once told me that he was fishing in a clear lake at about a seven-foot depth one fall day when a large bluegill swam leisurely up to his hook, hidden in a worm, "or so I thought. The 'gill looked that worm over, seemed to see something odd and swam away.

When I hauled the hook and line up and looked at the worm, I could see that the hook poked through the worm, making an odd shape. I hid the barb and dropped the line again. Within a few seconds I had a bite, and within the hour I had my limit of bluegill. So — hide the hook."

Another fishing acquaintance of mine, who professes to be a bass addict but likes bluegills, too, told me he uses a fly rod while his son uses a cane pole, hook and line and bobber.

"It's usually nip and tuck as to who catches the most and the biggest," he told me recently. "Bluegill fishing takes a finely honed reflex and a stout heart."

So remember, then, when the bass or trout are getting all the praise, don't overlook Mr. Bluegill for some fine catching and eating.

GYMNASTICS IS FLYING HIGH

State sportswriters recently voted Nini Wuensch Vermont Athlete of the Year.

This booming sport develops grace, poise and self-confidence, is fun for blind children and is used to treat learning disabilities.

By Penelope Lemov

After years of being ignored by school physical-education departments, gymnastics has swung into the limelight. There are college scholarships for the gifted and thousands of parallel bars, balance beams and trampolines set up to serve the youngsters who enjoy the sport.

What's turned the gymnastic world upside down? It really started with Olga Korbut and Nadia Comaneci. Their performances in the 1972 and 1976 Olympics made it clear that young women could be athletes and still be graceful and feminine. "When television showed Olga flying around on the uneven bars and Nadia performing a perfect routine on the balance beam, everyone could see that gymnastics was more than a bounce on the trampoline," says Ruth Ann McBride, head of a regional women's committee for the United States Gymnastic Federation. "Nobody knew what it was all about before."

Mrs. McBride, who runs MarVaTeens Gymnastic Club in Rockville, Md., knows that throwing flip-flops and aerials on her thickly padded practice mats develops strength, flexibility, poise and grace. Youngsters learn to control their bodies as they move through space, and unlike many other sports, gymnastics does not overdevelop any one part of the body.

"Here you have a sport that builds muscles and body control, doesn't penalize the little guy and builds confidence," says Stanford Lavine, an orthopedist specializing in sports medicine, who is the team doctor for the Washington Redskins.

Researchers also are finding gymnastics has therapeutic value for children who have problems perceiving left from right or who have reading disabilities stemming from similar perceptual problems. The trampoline has also been used effectively to help blind children who have coordination problems. Robert Measley, a physical-education instructor at the Washington State School for the Blind in Vancouver, reports. "Rebound tumbling at our school has proven to be a thrilling and rewarding activity. We have a few children who have severe problems with coordination and balance, and for some of these students the improvement in control has been quite remarkable."

Competitive gymnastics requires heavy sacrifices. Girls on Mrs. McBride's advanced team spend four hours a day, six days a week working out. "They don't have much of a social life," admits one coach. When they start competing on a national level, things get even tougher. Jennifer Huff, for example, is 14, and ranks 26th in the country. She has her eye on the 1980 Olympics, but she has given up a lot to get this far. When her father's job required him to move to Arkansas, Jennifer stayed behind in Maryland and moved in with her coach. "It was that," says Mrs. McBride, "or she could forget about the Olympics."

Jennifer isn't alone in making such a decision. Former Olympic coaches Muriel Grossfield and Vannie Edwards, with gymnastic schools in Connecticut and Alabama respectively, also provide live-in accommodations for their elite stars. The scarcity of top-level coaches and the gymnasts' drive to excel make a live-in arrangement the only way for some youngsters to achieve their goals.

These athletes also part ways with anything resembling chocolate shakes or banana splits. Their diet is strictly high protein-low calorie, and daily weigh-ins are routine.

Meanwhile, whether youngsters become competitive creatures or stay with gymnastics simply for fun, they find the sport rewarding. And there's a lasting effect. "You may lose the flexibility and strength you develop once you stop working out," says Mrs. McBride, a former competitor herself. "but the poise, grace and confidence you gain will stay with you always."

"Would you believe..."

Swap Shop

If keeping your child in new clothes is costing you an arm and a leg, starting a children's clothing exchange with other mothers in your neighborhood may help trim your budget. (Most garments are outgrown before they have a chance to wear out.) Here's how.

- Contact friends or send a note to school with your child asking classmates' mothers to call you if they'd be interested.
- Get together to decide where and when to hold the exchanges. (Before seasonal changes is best. For example, in late September for winter clothes.)
- A week or two before the exchange, the person holding it should call the other mothers to have them collect their children's outgrown clothes that are clean and in good condition and drop them off on a specific date. Steer clear of shoes — it's too hard to achieve the proper fit children need.
- After the clothing has been deposited, mothers meet to sort it, tagging the articles for size and condition.
- Any leftovers should be reclaimed by mothers to save for the next swap or to give as a tax-deductible donation to a charitable organization.

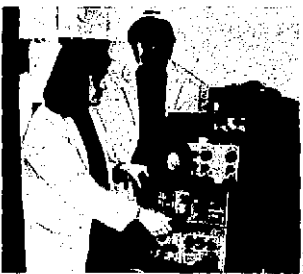

What To Do After A Burglary

What should you do if you return home and suspect your house has been burglarized? According to Lt. Harold F. Smith, commanding officer of the Manhattan (NY) Burglary Squad, you should do as little as possible — let the police handle it. "As soon as you suspect your premises have been burglarized, back off and call the police," says Smith. He advises calling from a neighbor's home or public phone. "Even if you think the burglary is past, the burglar could be in another room. But even if it's over, you won't be disturbing fingerprints or other evidence that might be valuable to the police," Smith says that one tipoff to a burglary in progress is a jammed door — frequently burglars will jam the lock to keep from being surprised. You'll make it much easier to recover stolen property if you've marked valuables with an etched or scratched identification number and if you've made a list with a description and serial number of the items.

WHAT IN THE WORLD...

Sight Saver

Amblyopia, or "lazy eye," is one of the most common eye disorders among young children. A child with this problem sees better with one eye than with the other and favors the good eye, allowing the "lazy eye" to weaken further. Most cases of amblyopia can be improved if they are treated before the age of 4. After 4, the percentage of improvement drops, and vision may be permanently reduced. How to tell if your child is amblyopic? Dr. Edward Raab, dir. of Pediatric Ophthalmology at N.Y.'s Mt. Sinai Hospital, says an eye examination is the surest way. Although he says that children's eyes should ideally be examined before then, he recommends having an examination no later than age 3 or 3½. You can check your preschooler's vision in your own home with a free kit prepared by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness. To get your home eye test — which is not intended to replace a visit to an eye-care specialist — write: National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, Dept. FW, 79 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016. Write "Family Weekly Eye Test" on the outside of the envelope to speed processing.

Detecting MS

There's still no cure for multiple sclerosis (MS), the often-crippling nervous-system disease that afflicts more than 250,000 Americans, but there are two new tests that can detect the disease years earlier than older methods. The two procedures, which are called evoked-responses tests because they measure the time it takes to evoke a response to a stimulus, such as a light or sound, can detect MS damage to the optic nerve or brainstem. The more delayed the patient's response to the stimulus, as monitored by a machine like the one above, the greater the nerve damage. Unlike previous procedures, the new tests are painless. Dr. Robert R. Young, director of the clinical neurophysiology laboratory at Mass. General Hospital, says, "It's good for people to know as early as possible they have MS so they can plan."

Adopt-A-Horse

If you have a horse lover in your family but no horses, here's an offer you may find too good to refuse. The Bureau of Land Management will give you one or more Nevada mustangs free of charge if you have the desire and a place to keep (they can be boarded) the animal(s). The only other restrictions are that the animals can't be used for commercial purposes and must be picked up in Nevada. Jan Bedrosian of the Bureau of Land Management says that 1,350 horses of all ages, suitable for pleasure-riding, showing or ranch work, will be available for adoption in the next few months. Currently, an estimated 40,000 wild horses are in Nevada, and because of overpopulation, the excess animals must be either adopted or destroyed. To get more information about adopting a horse, write: Adopt-A-Horse, Bureau of Land Management, Washington, D.C. 20240.

Preparing Your Child For School

Worried because you think your child has fewer skills than his kindergarten classmates? Relax, says a Univ. of Chicago-affiliated kindergarten teacher: the best preparation you can give your child is self-confidence. Vivian Paley, who is beginning her 18th year of teaching kindergarten, says, "Children who feel good about themselves are the only ones who have a head start in school — the average child can learn to do everything if he feels confident." One way of boosting your child's confidence is to "emphasize what a lot of things he knows, not all he has to learn," says Paley. "Don't emphasize that he can't tie his shoes yet — tell him how well he puts together his puzzle." Another way of making the transition to the classroom easier, says Paley, is to emphasize the familiar. "Don't build up school as a place where unfamiliar things go on. Say that the teacher likes to read stories and to play games, not that the child will have to work and learn to behave himself."

Quick Takes

What does an hour of TV add up to? When you watch an hour-long TV show, you see an average of 47 minutes of programming. The rest of the time is filled with commercials, lead-ins, credits and previews... Baseball players are the highest-paid professional athletes, with an average salary of $126,000, more than 3 times their average salary 7 years ago. NHL hockey players average $90,000, and football and baseball players earn an average of $50,000.... Youth may not be all that impulsive — at least when it comes to purchasing big ticket items. A Yankelovich, Skelly & White study reports that younger buyers — those 18 to 34 — do more comparison shopping, take longer to make up their minds, are more price-conscious and are more likely to seek advice and to consult advertising than their older counterparts.... It takes longer to stop a cat when you're wearing platform shoes than with ordinary footwear, according to a Univ. of Missouri study. Researchers say that the difference in stopping distance at 55 mph is almost 8 feet — which may mean the difference between a crash and a close call.... Last year, pet owners spent $2.997 billion on food for their dogs and cats, an increase of 8.4% over 1975.

Loaded With Homework

College students who drink beer while studying should have a few more just before taking their exams, says Dr. Ronald C. Petersen. He says tests conducted on Army volunteers indicated that material learned "under the influence" is best remembered under the continued influence of the same substance. Petersen says past tests indicate that alcohol produces the memory phenomenon and that a continual "dose" would be needed to maintain the knowledge.
